SIGNIFICANT FRENCH CONFERENCE MOVE

DALADIER TO HEAD DELEGATION

FOUR-POWER PACT TO BE HELD BACK

ECONOMICS AND DISARMAMENT

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph. Copyright. Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1911. Received June 6, 1933, 2.15 a.m.)

Paris, June 5.
It has practically been decided that M. Daladier, the Prime Minister, will himself head the French delegation to the World Economic Conference.

It is possible that after the more important stage have been passed, M. Daladier will leave matters in the hands of M. Caillaux, the famous French financial expert, and M.
Bonnet, the Finance Minister in the Daladier Government.

The decision is regarded as having considerable significance.

It was originally intended that
M. Caillaux, who is not a member of the Cabinet, but who is universally recognised as France's outstanding economic and monetary expert, should be entrusted with the charge of the French delegation.

SECURITY ISSUE.

The change from M. Caillaux to M. Daladier is attributed in some quarters to the Premier's determination to strike a east-iron balance as between French security and her disarmament.

Many observers of current developments in European political affairs would not be surprised if the Four Power Pact, upon which disarmament is now pivoted, hangs fire until the opening stages of the World Economic Conference which will be formally opened by His Majesty the King on Monday next.

MATTERN FLIGHT

SETS OFF ON RUSSIAN CROSSING

RECORD

Moscow, June 6.

James Mattern, the famous American long-distance flier, who is making an attempt to break the round-the-world record, left Moscow at 1.14 a.m.
for Sverdlovsk.

From Sverdlovsk, the flier will travel to Novosibirsk, Irkutsk and Khabarovsk.

Mattern is flying the "Century of Progress," a machine capable of a speed of 200 miles an hour and a flying range of about 3,200 miles. It is painted to resemble a flying eagle.

It will be recalled that on a previous attempt with Mr. Bennett Griffin, Mattern was forced down in Russia.

a.m. on June 3, flying to Newfoundland. His next stop was Oslo and his next Moscow. He is well within the time established up to this stage by Post and Gatty, the holders of the record.—Reuter.

CO-OPERATION IN INDIA

PROMINENT LEADERS APPEAL

Allahabad, June 6.

The release of all political prisoners, the withdrawal of the Ordinances, and the issue of an invitation to Congress to collaborate in shaping the new Constitution is urged in a telegram sent to Mr. Ramsay MacDonald,
Mr. Stanley Baldwin and Sir
Samuel Hoare.

The authors are sixty prominent Indians, including Dr. Tagore, Mr.
Sini and Mr. G. D. Birla.

It is argued that such cooperation is made possible by the truce which has been agreed by Congress in regard to civil disobedience.

A copy of the telegram has been sent to Lord Willingdon, the Viceroy, and to Mr. Gandhi.—

LAST PORTION TO BE BUILT

GRANT FROM THE BOXER FUND

Shanghai, June 6.

At an all-day meeting held yesterday, the Board of Trustees of the British Boxer Indemnity Fund, decided to advance $4,500,000 to the Minister of Railways for the construction of the remaining portion of the Canton-Hankow Railway.

The Trustees also decided to make an advance of $160,000 to the China Merchants Steam Navigation Company. The money will be used for the building of six new ships for the Company. The ships will be built in Great Britain.

The two loans, which represent at current rates of exchange approximately $80,000,000 will be the biggest advances ever made to the Chinese authorities, by the Board of Trustees.

The Board is also reported to be giving favourable consideration to further loans for educational and communication purposes.—Reuter.

PHILIPPINES INDEPENDENCE BILL

Little Hope of Compromise Plan at Present

The failure of all compromise efforts regarding the Hawes-Cutting Bill among Filipino political leaders now in Hongkong is revealed in an interview with the Hon. Sergio Osmena, President Pro Tempore of the Philippine Senate and Vice-Chairman of the Nationalista (Government) Party.

On the arrival of the Conte Rosso on Saturday, the Hon. Manuel L. Quezon, President of the Senate and Chairman of the Nacionalista, reiterated his refusal to advocate the acceptance of the Bill in its present, or any other form, and added that before he left Manila the sentiment of the people was in accordance with this view. He had no reason to believe that this sentiment had changed.

The Hon. Sergio Osmena says:
"I don't know what Mr. Quezon is going to say or what he has said but we, the members of the Mission who have been engaged for a year in the States on this Bill, will unanimously recommend its acceptance. The Bill definitely settles the question of independence and we hope the people will accept it but I cannot say whether they will or not because I don't know what the feeling is."

WHITE SETTLERS ATTACKED

FURTHER DETAILS OF LAIKIPIA AFFAIR

Nairobi, May 30.

Further details of the attack on white settlers in East Africa have now come to hand.

It appears that armed parties of wild Suk tribesmen from portions of the northern frontier province of Kenya, invaded the white settled area of Laikipia in consequence of grazing having failed in their own district following the recent drought.

There seems to have been some misunderstanding. The party of tribesmen entered the farm occupied by a settler named Wallace, driving herds of cattle and sheep in search of grazing.

The farmer took possession of the stock, whereupon the tribesmen attacked Wallace and the latter had to fire in self-defence.
It is believed that several tribesmen were injured.

The native settler Wallace, who was thrown into a gully.
Police patrols are now posted in the area which has been cleared of tribesmen.—Reuter.

ATTACK ON EVEREST

FURTHER EFFORT

IMPROVEMENT IN WEATHER

(Special to "Telegraph")

Bombay, June 6.

The Rutledge Expedition which is attempting to scale Mount Everest is determined to make a further effort to reach the summit before the monsoon sets in completely.

The early advance of the monsoon has already hindered the preparations of the climbers and several bids for the peak have had to be abandoned.

The weather has now shown some improvement, however, and it is hoped to renew the attempt
this week.

In the event of a further failure, the expedition will probably be compelled to postpone the attack on Everest until the monsoon season is over.

In one recent attempt on the summit, two of the members of the Expedition, including Mr. F. S.
Smythe, the conqueror of Kan-chenjunga, were missing for some time, but turned up safely some hours later, again reporting failure.
They were apparently compelled to take shelter from a particularly strong gale.—Reuter.

Detroit chalking up eight against Cleveland. Philadelphia put seven

THE FRENCH TITLES

CRAWFORD BEATS
COCHET

MISS SCRIVEN TRIUMPHS

Paris, June 5.

If Wimbledon holds as many surprises and two such closing sensations as those which featured the French championships to-day, then international tennis of 1933 is going to contribute some unusually interesting historical data.

To-day both the men's and women's singles titles went out of France when, in one of the greatest displays of his varied career, Jack Crawford, of Australia, defeated Henri Cochet, reigning champion of the world for four years, in straight sets, and Miss Scriven (England) beat Mme. Mathieu, the French ace, by two sets to one.

IRRESISTIBLE CRAWFORD.

Crawford was irresistible. Setting a terrific pace he forced Cochet on the defensive from the opening games and gradually increased his grip until the French wizdard could offer practically no opposition.

Cochet only made a fight in the first set, and then he had conceded this at the fourteenth game, collapsed before the magnificent directed attack of the Australian and won but four other games.

Crawford, exhibiting his wide range of strokes, attacked on both hands with sweeping drives followed up by wonderful volleys.
So predominant was he during the concluding sixteen games that Cochet never looked likely to stem the tide.

FRANCE LOSES TITLE FOR SECOND TIME.

This is the first time Crawford has won the French title, and there is no record of him having previously beaten Cochet. With Harry Hopman he played a five sets doubles match against Cochet and Brugnon at Wimbledon in 1928 but lost. In the same year he appeared in the final of the Mixed Doubles championship at Wimbledon and in 1930 returned to win it in company with Miss Ryan.

Cochet was the holder of the championship, last year beating de Stefani in the final, and the title leaves France for the first time since 1891, the first year of the competition, when an overseas competitor named Briggs carried it off.

COCHET'S LAST FIGHT.

To Miss Scriven falls the honour of being the first Englishwoman to win the ladies singles championship and in so doing the title remains out for France for the fifth successive year.

Mme. Mathieu made her second appearance in the final in two years, being defeated in 1932 by
Mrs. Helen Wills
Moody. To-day
the Frenchwoman
had to bow the knee to a gallant opponent.

Miss Scriven, who in the opinion of the English critics possesses the most viable backhand stroke among all lady players, quickly got into her stride and answered the first set with the loss of two games.

After this Mme. Mathieu appearance in the final in two years, being defeated in 1932 by

Mrs. Helen Wills
Moody. To-day
the Frenchwoman
had to bow the knee to a gallant opponent.

MORGAN ENQUIRY CONTINUES

ALLEGHANY STOCK
REVELATIONS

RAIL MAGNATE QUESTIONED

Washington, June 5.

The feature of the Senate investigation of the Morgan Company's operations to-day was the examination of the well-known railway magnate, Mr. Orie Paxton Van Sweringen.

Mr. Van Sweringen is the chairman of the Board of the Missouri Pacific Railroad, and he organised the Alleghany Securities Holding Corporation in 1929.

The Alleghany stock has been the subject of much discussion during the enquiry, it being alleged that the shares in the holding corporation were obtained by Morgan's and passed on to favoured clients at cost price.

RASKOB LETTER.

It is alleged that Mr. John J.
Raskob, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, had the privilege of purchasing Alleghany stock at prices far below the prevailing market quotations. A letter was produced written by Mr.
Raskob, thanking Mr. Morgan for the favour and adding: "I hope the future will offer me an opportunity to reciprocate."

Mr. W. H. Woodin, the Secretary to the Treasury Department, is also said to have obtained Alleghany stock and to have sold it almost immediately at the much higher ruling market price.

A GIFT?

Those who are demanding Mr.
Woodin's resignation declare that as Mr. Morgan could have sold all the shares in the open market and made a huge profit for himself, the privilege extended to Mr. Woodin was nothing more than a gift.

Colonel Charles Lindbergh also comes under the heading of those who made immediate profits out of Alleghany stock by the same process.

"RAILWAY EMPIRE."

Questioned by Mr. Ferdinand Pecora, the counsel who is himself the subject of attack, Mr. Van Sweringen described Mr. J. P.
Morgan's part in building up the vast "Railway Empire," and said the Morgan firm lost $5,200,000 in the years 1923 and 1924 to the Nickel Plate Railway and $9,600,- 000 in 1927 to the Chesapeake Corporation, which was formed by Mr. Van Sweringen to purchase control of the Chesapeake-Chicago Railway.

The witness added that he often consulted Morgan's as "worldwide counsellors in financial matters."—Reuter.

pleased pressure and gaining confidence in her strokes increased the pace! Miss Scriven tried hard to hold her off and to snatch a straight sets victory, but the Frenchwoman broke through at the tenth game.

The struggle in the final set was titanic, but Mme. Mathieu had expended a lot of her energy in saving the previous set and Miss Scriven sailed out a worthy winner at 6-4.

lian competitors, the winners be-

THE WORLD OF WOMEN

TOP CHIC FOR STREET WEAR

Topping the mode this spring are street costumes whose waist treatment and hats are distinctly new and intimately related to each other.
Coat frocks have distinctive chic and popularity right now. A crisp white pique vestee gives dash to this corded coat frock—and at the same time is very practical for it may be removed for laundering simply by unfastening the two huge pearl buttons that anchor it at the beltline. Under cuffs of pique finish the flaring sleeves. Very smart is the white hat made of the same pique.
The square, soldierly cape suit with organ pleating stopped the show at Schiaparelli's Paris opening. This copy is handsome navy crepe, the dress made with pastel pink crepe top tied in a "bag" neckline. The removable cape has a big satin bow. The little chapeau is blue, draped to a high-hat line.

YOUR CHILDREN.

Childhood Fears May Grow into Adult Terrors

By Olive Roberts Barton

"I cannot really enjoy anything," said the young woman, "because I have a sort of fear or terror behind it."

"Most of us have a certain heaviness of heart we can't shake off," I replied.

"I don't know how other people are. I've often wondered," she said. "I hope everyone isn't like me. Ever since I was a little girl I have had a dread of something. I can't tell what it is. Maybe I'm what they call a moral coward. Perhaps I can't face life. But really I never enjoy anything. No matter how happy I ought to be—no matter what's going on, a party, or new clothes or—spring, I have a heavy heart. I know I am abnormal for some reason or other!"

Rare or Common?
I had my doubts about that and said so. Is she really abnormal, this unhappy young person who cannot seem to find undiluted joy in anything she does? On the contrary, if the truth were known, I believe she is more common than uncommon. I believe there are thousands of adults and children who cannot shake off this feeling of dread, or heaviness, no matter what happens.

Psychologists tell us that it is a hangover from those days when man lived in constant terror of his life. Perhaps. But do all wild animals live with dread in their hearts? Aren't the forest birds happy even when they sing? Is there always the shadow of the imaginary hawk or eagle over their lives?

Shocks of Childhood

I cannot think so. Weariness and sudden alarm cannot be classed with this utter terror of living. They are different things altogether.

Again it may be caused by extreme ego, where introspection is daily habit and the world rotates around self. Usually the introvert not happy. The sensitive soul can never forget himself and ever imagines trouble—he really jumps ahead to seize it and bring it to his heart.

But I cannot believe this is the answer either. I believe it lies outside of either personality or heredity. I believe it is the result of a succession of shocks in early childhood.

It is fear in its most terrible form.
Books tell us that we are born with certain indescribable fears, including that of death.

Don't Frighten Children

It proves no point particularly concerning these terror-ridden people. It is hardly conceivable that some would have it in such an exaggerated sense while others never know what it means at all. A little child frightened of his father may develop a perpetual terror of things he doesn't understand and forced to face them. I think it is more likely to be something he has to live with than the occasional fright of a storm or an animal or the dark. Deep impressions are caused by repetition.

This is why I think it important that early childhood be happy. Happy, simple, quiet, normal, uncomplicated and free of excitement. We never know what Frankenstein is being formed in embryo in small hearts to rise and haunt them later.

The capacity for happiness in later life depends on a contented childhood.

Make-Up Hints for Mothers

By Alicia Hart

Mother's make-up should never ape daughter's.

Older skins need different treatment. Older cheeks and lips call for quite different effects.

The sophisticated older woman knows the value of a skillful hand at applying rouge and lipstick. Less rouge, subtler use of lipstick, and everything put on after a nice greasing.

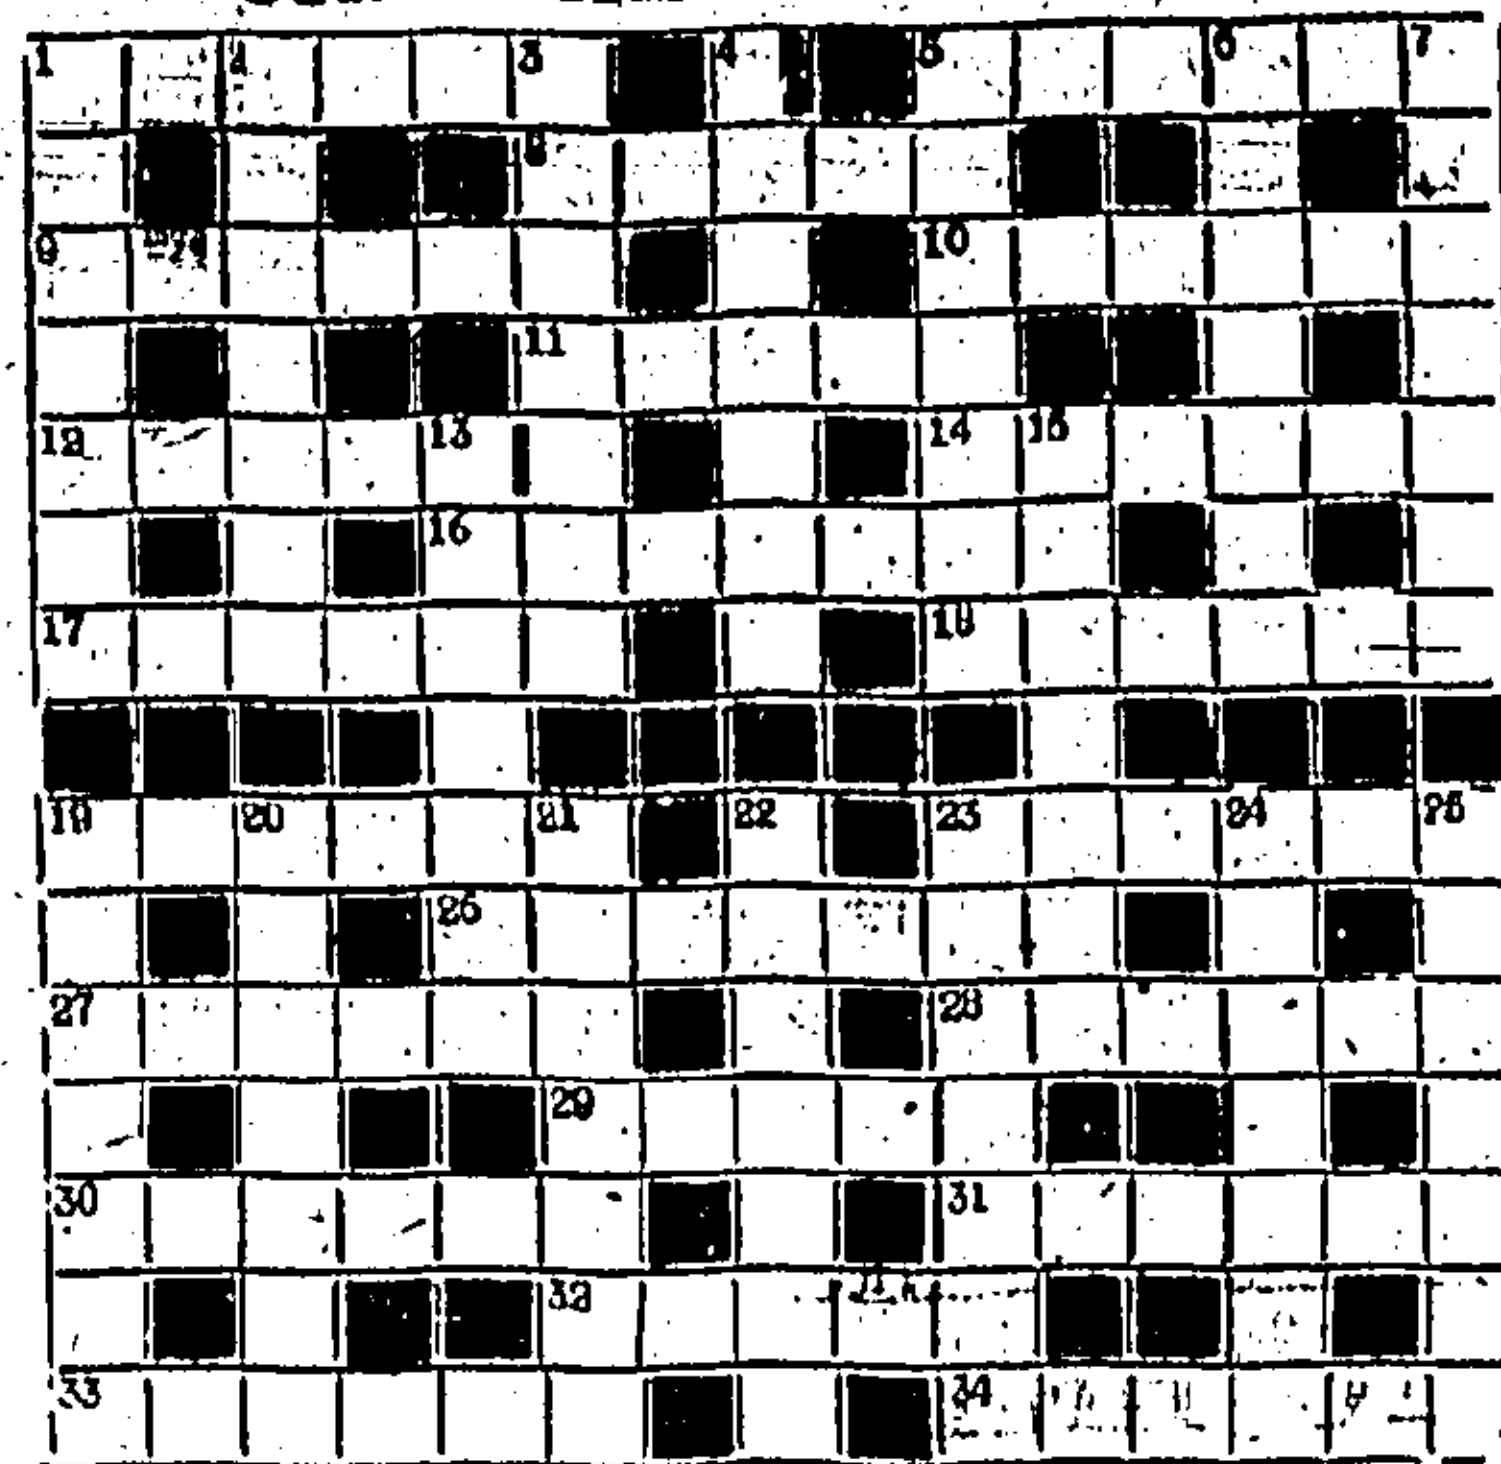

Greasing is really the word. For skins after 35 years are drier and there's no use mincing words. The average older woman needs more of that bloom-on-the-peach dewiness than she does colour. And it is the right creams and powder bases which will give it.

Eye lids, instead of needing colour, cry out for a dewy look. You'll be surprised how a little muscle oil or some special eyelid cream will help out. It hides those fine little wrinkles that will come. And leaving the eyelids just a bit greased makes your eyes look much younger.

Try a little of brilliantine on both your eyebrows and your lashes. This is a marvelous little helper. Having your eyelashes and brows properly groomed is half the battle.

When it comes to picking rouge and lipstick, if your hair is gray or white, choose a light red tone, a blonde shade. And don't use too much. And always use a cream powder base for your cheeks and run a little cold cream over your lips. Try these little hints. Every one of them is worth while.

LOVE or MONEY?

BY H. W. CORLEY

CHAPTER XLVIII

The tall man turned sharply. "Miss Moran—that is to say, Mrs. Townsend! And Barry! Why, this is a piece of luck! I wonder how it happened?"

"We were here shopping," Mona explained. Then, feeling rather foolish, she asked, "You came on the Helena?"

"Yes. Let's go somewhere where we can talk," said Mr. Garretson, swinging a cane at a mule team the driver of which was affably waiting for the three to move before attempting to proceed. "I can never get used to these vehicles. Give me Fifth Avenue and 42nd street any day!"

They moved into the shadow of the postoffice.

"I came to see you, Mrs. Townsend," the lawyer went on, "but they told me at the steamship office I might leave the steamer here and chance finding a boat to carry me across to Holiday Island or that I could go to Port of Spain and charter a plane."

He smiled beamingly. "I came ashore to inquire and here I find you!"

"We'll get your baggage," Barry announced hospitably, "and then run you over to Holiday in no time. We were just starting—had been waiting for the mail."

The luggage was on board the Helena and Barry said he would go for it. "Just give me your checks," he said. "Well then, if you haven't checks, your cabin key will do."

"Let's all go together," suggested Mona. Mr. Garretson seconded the remark.

"I thought you might like to have tea," Barry said, hesitating. "It's going to be dark soon. We'll have to shove off before long."

"Oh, tea can wait," agreed Mr. Garretson and Mona in the same breath. It was as though neither of them cared to be left in the company of the other just then.

"She doesn't want to be alone with me," the lawyer decided.

"Maybe she thinks I'll interfere if she wants to marry that boy."

"He knows Barry wants me to marry him," thought Mona, "and he's here to prevent it. Just let him try!" Suddenly she knew that all along she had been determined to marry Barry. She wanted to seize Barry's arm and tell him so, to kiss his cheek and end this foolish uncertainty forever. Let the sailors' home, the orphanage have the Townsend millions. What did she care? She and Barry could take care of themselves.

Instantly she knew what she had really known always but had refused to recognize—that she would marry Barry on his own terms.

Blindly she followed him to the jetty, clambered aboard the motor launch and seated herself while Barry adjusted the wheel. The launch glided, sputtering, out toward the Helena.

Mr. Garretson, across from Mona, smiled as the cooling breezes struck him. It was as though he, too, had a secret.

"He thinks he's here in time," Mona told herself.

The stewards came running down the companionway with Mr. Garretson's bags. They stowed them beneath the launch seats. Waving the lawyer away, Barry tossed the boys a handful of silver. The Water Sprite backed away from the ladder and then, whirling, made off for the space between the two arms of green shore.

"Are you near here?" Mr. Garretson asked.

The boat sped onward silently. Before they reached the harbour at Holiday Mona's mind was made up. Dinner was served on the verandah. Steve, leaning on a cane but in excellent spirits, came to join them. Dr. Allen was in the background. Lottie was at Steve's side.

Mona had barely time to bathe and dress. She did this, hurrying, but she had never looked more beautiful. She was going to marry Barry! She was going to defy Mr. Garretson, toss the fortune back where it had come from and brave all for love!

What did she care for money? Barry was right in insisting that he didn't want his uncle's wealth. They would have enough and more.

But as she went out on the verandah to sit before dinner her heart smote her. Mr. Garretson had come on business, that was certain. Could it concern the Empress? Possibly he meant to ask her about her intended sale of the diamond. Perhaps, as executor of the estate, he would forbid it.

"It doesn't matter!" she told herself. "I'll marry Barry in spite of everything and everyone!"

She wished Lottie were not quite so engrossed in Steve. Lottie's good-natured chatter would have been a comfort. Mr. Garretson, in fresh linens, praised the dinner—the deliciously seasoned vegetables, the steak brought from Granada. He raised his coffee cup, remarking on the delicacy of the fine china.

The fruit centerpiece, so carefully arranged by Miss Gracie, pleased him too. It would have pleased anyone to whom a fruit centerpiece meant the inevitable oranges, bananas and apples. Here were nectarines, grapes and yellow-jade oranges, gleaming against a dark green bowl.

"You have fishing here?"

"Lots of it. In the bay half-way around the island. We'll take you to-morrow, if you like."

The maids cleared the table. Mona rose, followed by the others, and walked out on the terrace where the deck chairs commanded a view of the stars.

"Those must be the port lights of the S. S. Helena," Mr. Garretson said, pointing to the chain of lights along the horizon.

"She's due at Barbadoes in the morning," responded Barry. Presently he rose to go for tobacco. Mr. Garretson said that he preferred Turkish cigarettes when he could get them and Barry remembered they had brought a supply.

The others were chatting busily. Mona rose too and slipped away.

"Barry!" She stood in the doorway of his study, a dim, cool shadow. He had not turned on the lights, was groping in the darkness expecting each moment to find the cigarette tin.

"Barry! You've asked me many times to marry you. Now I'm asking you. Will you marry me, Barry?" She drew nearer. She could see him straighten in the dark, lay his hand on the desk to stop its trembling.

"Found them?" she asked.

"Found what?" Barry said, as though dazed. Then he added quickly, "Oh, the cigarettes. Yes, they're here."

"I asked you a question, Barry. Will you marry me?"

"You'll lose the money," he reminded her dully. "We'll be as poor as church mice."

"But we'll have the mine!"

"I had a letter to-day from Foster," he went on. "Things aren't going any too well. We need another Empress."

"Oh, the Empress!" She would tell him soon that she owned the Empress and that she was about to sell it. She would have the cheque drawn to the mine. That would do. But she would not tell him all that yet.

She was very near now. He could feel the delicious mist of her hair across his bent face, could see the dim outline of her slender body. Her cheek touched his, smoothly cool. Through the window they could see the wavering of the lighted cigars on the terrace.

"Are you, Barry?" The girl's voice was very low.

"I'll give you three guesses!" Suddenly Mona found herself in his arms.

A little later, Mr. Garretson, shown to his room, surveyed the velvet darkness without and sighed with deep satisfaction.

"A lovely place," he mused. "A beautiful place for young love. That Saccarelli chap is head over

FISHING JUNK SUNK IN COLLISION

After leaving Mongkok at 6 a.m. yesterday, a fishing junk came into collision with the steam-launch Sling Yuen. The boat was holed near the bows. The vessel sank rapidly.

There were no casualties, the crew of the junk being rescued.

heels in love with Miss Carr. Anyone could see that. Pretty girl, too. I like her. Mona now—she's deeper! I wonder if she is in love with Barry? I wonder what she'll say when I tell her that she can marry him after all. Marry him and keep her fortune! She'll be surprised to know the will reads: "My beloved wife, Mona Townsend, must not change her name by giving herself in marriage."

Mona wouldn't change her name—not a hair's breadth. She'll be giving herself in marriage."

The lawyer strolled back to the bed and instantly, with an outburst of mild profanity, found himself entangled in the mosquito-proof draperies. They required, as he observed, special handling.

At last he was safe in bed. The swaying of the palms, the beating of the waves were the only sounds to break the stillness.

A TRUE CAREER FOR MEN OF BRAINS

alter it in two ways. He would provide an avenue for fairly rapid promotion for outstanding men who join as constables. But he would also provide for "a direct recruitment into the officer posts of men who have acquired good educational qualifications before appointment, and are selected as suitable in respect of personality and physique." He would make it a service which would appeal to ambitious and capable youth of every class. He would make it a more educated profession.

SUPERMELY IMPORTANT.

The matter is of supreme public importance. I do not think that Lord Trenchard's diagnosis of the present weaknesses can be disputed, or the value of the remedy he suggests. He is a distinguished soldier, but no man is more free from military prejudice. To militarise the police would be the worst of blunders, for half their value is due to the fact that they are not a cast-iron hierarchy but very near to the ordinary man. But the increasing complexity of their duties and the present unsettled state of the world demand greater expert knowledge and that widely diffused keenness which belongs only to a service that offers a true career to talent.

We have been compelled by the changing facts of the world to revise most of our economic and financial views, and make a new analysis. The same spirit is needed in every other department of life. No unchanged traditional machine can be adequate to the needs of to-day. We have the best police in the world. Our duty, by timely reform, is to see that it remains the best.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGEYESTERDAY'S MARKET FIRM

According to Messrs. Swan, Culbertson and Fritz, the New York market was firm yesterday. Business done: 5,010,000 shares. The Wall Street Journal reports: "Special issues in several groups, including rails, made wide gains while the main list remained firm at moderate gains, due to bullish business news. The price of grains was also higher owing to unfavourable wheat crop reports from Central and Southern Kansas. Traders who sold short on Saturday expecting a technical setback were obliged to cover and impetused the list upward with their bidding."

PEACE AND DISARMAMENT

It seems rather strange anti-war propaganda which is also anti-disarmament propaganda. Yet the issue involved, the achievement of Peace with Security, presents one of the biggest problems facing the nations of the world to-day. The key to the whole situation lies in the mental outlook and for this reason, a film now being shown in the Colony is of considerable interest to students of the international peace problem. Whether one agrees or disagrees with the final verdict, the presentation is stimulating, and thought-provoking. We should say at once that we disagreed in most particulars with the moral which the film endeavored to draw. Many current realities are ignored, including the forces which tend to bring nations together to formulate common policies. And if disarmament is agreed and acted upon, the fear of being caught unprepared by a war-seeking nation can no longer exist. We have not yet reached that happy stage. The dangerous suggestion still dominates the minds of many people, that there are two sorts of nations, those who want war and those opposed to war. It is the alleged existence of nations which aim at war which is used to justify professedly peace-loving nations in preparations allegedly defensive but nevertheless provocative. Unless it is assumed that nations do not want war, it is useless to expect substantial improvement in their relations. Recently the Fascist Grand Council declared Italy's determination not to trouble the peace, but to collaborate in the reconstruction of Europe. But there has been a strengthening of the Little Entente owing partly to suspicions of Italy. French statements have been interpreted in an anti-Italian sense. The policy of European states has been influenced by fear of Italy's designs. Yet when Italy says it does not want war, it may well be believed. On its side, Italy charges Yugo-Slavia and France with preparing war against it. If Italians sell arms to Hungary, French citizens sell arms to the Little Entente. France appears in Italian eyes to be an "enemy." To the detached observer it would seem that France certainly has no intention of initiating a war; and of the sincerity of the pacific sentiments of the people there, can be no doubt. Yet French policy appears to justify Italian policy, just as Italian policy justifies French. On the Rhine and on the Vistula there is the same spectacle of nations which assert that they are menaced but are not menacing. The fact of the matter is that no country really wants war, but almost every country pursues a policy which may lead to war. It begins by fear of the neighbour, and it thus arouses fear in the neighbour. It considers that it is different from the rest; its own armaments are for its own protection, and not for aggression. But each country, believing these things of itself, refuses to believe them of other countries. The lamentable classification, accusatory of others, is responsible for a state of affairs recalling too vividly that of 1914. If each nation examined itself, and expected some reasonableness of its neighbour, instead of dwelling on the wickedness of the neighbour and its own righteousness, each would serve its own interests no less than the interests of peace.

The Mystery of a Hansom Cab

Of course a generation scornful to any speed less than 40 miles an hour probably doesn't care, but older folks will pause to register their thanks to Punch. For, in a recent issue, that genial dispenser of wit and philosophy tells how the once popular conveyance—the hansom cab—acquired its name. Just 100 years ago Joseph Aloysius Hansom, Esquire, an English architect of some renown, invented what has been prettily termed the "gondola of London." The United Kingdom is dotted with churches designed by Hansom, and this possibly accounts for the tower-like construction of his unique vehicle. Parenthetically it may here be remarked that the resemblance to ecclesiasticism did not extend to the cockney driver. A gay and expansive freedom of speech characterized that jaunty and picturesque Jehu. Particularly was this noticeable in his caustic comment when omnibuses blocked the way. "Why don't yer bring yer old woman aht to teach yer ow to drive?" he would banter the busman as, with a triumphant flourish of his whip, he squirmed through the obstructing traffic and sped away at the breakneck gait of at least eleven miles an hour. Coach builders have affirmed that the hansom cab was the most accurately balanced horse-drawn equipage ever designed. Somehow or other, no other type of cab gave the occupant the same pleasing sense of exhilaration as did the hansom. There was the dash of adventure in the open view ahead and the fun of communicating with the driver by poking up the trapdoor with one's walking stick. Here and there, in London and elsewhere, a hansom may still be found, although rather in the nature of a relic reminiscent of that misty past when Fergus Hume's "Mystery of a Hansom Cab" rode in the van of best sellers and the call of "hansom, sir," was just another picturesque touch to Piccadilly.

A New Imperialism

In a day when nations seeking to add new territory to their domains by conquest are censured by other nations, two such projects, one in execution and the other planned, should win nothing but praise. It is through such conquest, directed by engineering skill and not military generalship, that the Netherlands proceeds with its $400,000,000 task of wresting 550,000 acres of land from the grip of the sea. Now word comes that Denmark is planning to put thousands of unemployed to work adding to useful service territory now submerged between the islands of Moen and Bogo in South Zealand. No remonstrance or appeal to the World Court or the League of Nations has been occasioned by this mobilization of men and resources for purposes of conquest—nor have other nations, jealous of imperialist inclinations of a neighbour, argued for "balance of power," "parity," or "limitation" of dredger fleets. Old Man Ocean, while putting up a stubborn fight to retain the land will, it is hoped, eventually cede those small portions of a vast estate to the enterprising nations. If nations must enlarge the imperial scope of their endeavours or make room for a growing population they may yet find methods which will not deprive others of their rights or property. The building of dredgers instead of battleships, tractors instead of tanks and the arming of men with tools instead of guns offer rich possibilities.

A TRUE CAREER FOR MEN OF BRAINS

RE-MODELLING LONDON'S POLICE FORCE

By JOHN BUCHAN, M.P.

Lord Trenchard's Report on the Metropolitan Police is a document which gives cause for thought. Not that the law is losing ground in its fight with disorder. At first sight it would appear that crime in London had increased during the year by 220 per cent., but that is only because a better statistical method has been adopted. The real increase is less than 6 per cent., and it lies chiefly in small larcenies. Crimes of violence against the person have been very few, and in the last two years there has been only one authenticated case of the motor bandit, that bogey of the timorous. The ordinary citizen may still sleep peacefully in his bed.

NEW SITUATION.

But the report raises a grave question of public policy. The Metropolitan Police has long endeared itself to the people of London. Sir Robert Peel in 1829 started the system of demanding from recruits only a good character and a satisfactory physique, and of filling all posts up to, and including, the rank of superintendent by promotion from below. We have always got the physique and the character. There have been fewer scandals than in any other important police force in the world. In earlier days the system amply justified itself.

But to-day a new situation has arisen. The criminal has become far more subtle and ingenious, and he has at his disposal scientific appliances of which our fathers never dreamed. To cope with him the police must do more than keep up with him; they must get before him. That is a job which needs more than honesty and courage and good muscles. It demands a trained mind. Now at present we have no provision for such training. The entrance examination for a constable is of the most rudimentary type, and all recruitment begins with the rank of constable. Though since 1919 the status and pay of the police have been greatly improved, the service is drawing only in a small degree upon the secondary schools. Not enough educated men enter the force.

A DEAD-END NOW.

Moreover, less than one in five of those who join qualify for promotion to higher ranks. There are already beyond the promotion zone, and "have no incentive to effort during the remaining years of service beyond their own sense of duty." For them the service is simply a dead-end, and yet it is a service which requires of every member a continued keenness and a steadily increasing competence. It must be a highly expert profession, but the present method of recruitment is a direct discouragement to the kind of man who is capable of becoming an expert. The system is also bad for discipline in the higher sense. Abuses have crept in which would be impossible in a service which was largely staffed by, and which offered a real career to, ambitious and competent men. Lord Trenchard gives us as an instance the lengths to which the custom of allowing men off duty to be employed privately at matches, concerts, and sales, and to receive gratuities from private employers, has been carried.

Another is the appalling waste of time due to attendances at the Federation and Branch Boards established in 1919. These Boards have no fewer than 480 meetings in a year in official time, and roughly each involves the withdrawal from duty for a whole day of up to twenty and thirty police officers. This is clearly an abuse of the purpose of the 1919 Act. The consequence is a good deal of agitation and propaganda, and the production of a kind of "sen lawyer" who would not be tolerated in any other disciplined service. It is right that the force should have a full opportunity of discussing matters connected with their welfare and efficiency, but that is no reason why public money should be wasted in ill-informed agitation. Once again the cause is the system of recruitment.

AN UNFAIR SYSTEM.

The system, too, is as unfair to the police as to the public. There is no clear avenue from the bottom to the top. The chief posts at the headquarters at Scotland Yard are the Assistant-Commissionerships and Deputy Assistant-Commissionerships. The present holders have been drawn from the Army, the Navy, the Civil Service, and the legal profession. A number of Chief Constables are held by men promoted from the force itself, but there has been only one case of an Assistant-Commissioner so appointed.

Now it is perfectly clear that the Metropolitan Police cannot be run on the lines of the Army and the Navy. It is a halfway house between the regular defence forces and civil life, and it must work out its own appropriate system. But the first requirement is to attract men who have trained and active minds and can impress their personalities upon their subordinates. There must be an officer class, using the word not in any social sense. No army can be run wholly by non-commissioned officers. In a battalion there are 92 officers to deal with between 800 and 900 men. In the Metropolitan Police there is one man of the officer type to over 4,000 constables.

Lord Trenchard's conclusion is the same as that of the Lee Commission of 1929. That Commission held that "long experience and good service in the lower ranks of the force cannot be the only, or even the most important, qualification for the higher posts, which ought to be filled in all cases by men who, besides being themselves upright and fair-minded, are capable of impressing their own standards on their subordinates."

Lord Trenchard holds that a system under which all recruitment is to the rank of constable cannot provide a sufficiency of such men. He would therefore

The Very Idea!

By GAD, IT'S CRICKET!

By Eddie Kelly, V.C., M.C.C.

Britain may rule the waves, but, according to the Aussies, she's not going to be allowed to waive the rules.

It seems that the Australian cricketing Board of Control hasn't finished with body line bowling yet.

New rules, for the protection of the batsmen, have been formulated, and have been sent to the M.C.C. for consideration.

The A.B.C. doesn't mind Larwood having a leg theory. What they object to is that he puts the theory into practice.

So, henceforth, body line bowling must be abolished. But the Aussies haven't gone far enough. Much more than the mere abolition of body line bowling is needed for the protection of a batsman.

Free, and without charge, we have gone to the trouble of formulating a set of rules that should meet the position. We give them to the M.C.C. for what they are worth.

1. If, in the opinion of the Umpire, the wicket keeper calls "Owat" in so shrill a voice as to disconcert the batsman, the Umpire may order the wicket keeper to be gagged and his arms bound behind his back, and to take up his position directly between the batsman and Larwood.

2. If a fieldsman deliberately catches the ball in the air after leaving the bat and before striking the ground, the Umpire may rule this "No Catch" and order the offending fieldsman to stand in a corner; but the Umpire shall not make this decision before consulting the scoring board and the captain of the batting side.

3. A batsman shall be deemed to be "Out" if struck on the head by a meteorite, provided one of the fieldsmen has not handled it.

4. If the batsman not taking strike shall trip the bowler with his bat or strike him on the shin during the bowler's run to the crease, the Umpire shall order the bowler to bowl from a distance of at least six feet from the offending batsman.

5. If a wicket shall be thrown down by a fieldsman or knocked down by the wicket keeper or any fieldsman with ball in hand while the batsmen are running and the batsman be still outside the crease, and, in the opinion of the Umpire, the batsman would have reached the crease if he had run faster, the Umpire shall rule "Not Out."

6. If these six rules do not fill up half a column of the "Very Idea" the composers shall be authorised to formulate enough additional rules to do so.

THE SLENDER SILHOUETTE.

It is time the police, themselves no practitioners of it, began to look into this slimming business.

When a man wishes to build a house, or even a garden tool-shed, he has to obtain official approval of his plans, which must not be departed from. There are few things he can do without first obtaining the permission of somebody. Life in Hongkong is chiefly a matter of permits and prohibitions.

Yet here is woman, allowed to chop and change her figure as caprice dictates, and no one dares to say her nay, not even the editor of The Critic.

Thanks to modern high-speed methods of slimming, a woman who is buxom to-day may be lissom to-morrow and positively shadowy the day after that.

Figures that are as round as the "o" of Giotto become garble lines without the slightest notice.

The whole thing is most bewildering. It should be ordered to stop.

We always keep an eye on the writings of the fashion experts, because of all the stupidities that are written in his giddy old age, theirs are about the stupidest.

If one were to judge by the stuff that is penned by the fashion writers, one would conclude that a large number of our women are either savages or half-wits.

And we refuse to believe they are as bad as that, bad as they are.

EVE'S EVIL INFLUENCE.

To turn to another matter, why do women persist in treating us men as if we were something between helpless babes and confirmed imbeciles?

We say nothing against the maternal instinct, because it has saved most of us at one time or another from destruction. But there are few men who have not a woman or two—mother, wife, or sister—clinging desperately to them and trying to protect them from the buffetings of a cruel world—those very buffetings that we enjoy, and which give us opportunity to assert the triumphant power of personality over the innate perversity of events.

"Oh, don't pay any attention to Marvin! He just despises playing contract."

RUSSIA IN GRIP OF FAMINE

AS TERRIBLE AS IN 1921

"WE ARE DYING"

Berlin. "Russia to-day is in the grip of famine which is proving as disastrous as the catastrophe of 1921 when millions died," said Mr. Gareth Jones, former political secretary of Mr. Lloyd George, when he arrived in Berlin recently en route for London after a long walking trip through the Ukraine and other districts of the Soviet Union.

Mr. Jones, who speaks Russian fluently, was the first foreigner to visit the Russian countryside since the Moscow authorities forbade foreign correspondents to leave the city. His report, which was delivered to the Institute of International Affairs explains the reason for this prohibition.

In an interview with the New York Evening Post, Mr. Jones said that famine on a colossal scale was impending. It meant death to millions by hunger, and the beginnings of serious unemployment in a land which has hitherto prided itself on every man having a job. This summed up Mr. Jones's first-hand observations.

PITIFUL SCENES.

"I walked alone through villages and twelve collective farms. Everywhere was the cry 'there is no bread; we are dying!' This cry came to me from every part of Russia.

"In a train, a Communist denied to me that there was a famine. I slung into the spittoon a crust of bread I had been eating from my own supply. The peasant, my fellow-passenger, fished it out and ravenously ate it. I threw orange peel into the spittoon; the peasant again grabbed and devoured it.

"The communist subsided.

"A foreign expert returning from Kazakhstan told me that a million out of five million have died of hunger. I can believe it.

"After Stalin, the most hated man in Russia is Bernard Shaw. To many of those who can read and have read his glowing descriptions of plentiful food in their starving land the future is blacker than the present.

TOO WEAK TO WORK.

"There is insufficient seed. Many of the peasants are too weak to work the land. The new taxation policy which promised to take only a fixed amount of grain from the peasant will fail to encourage production because the peasants refuse to trust the Government."

In short, concluded Mr. Jones, the Government's policy of collectivisation and the peasants' resistance to it had brought Russia to the worst catastrophe since the famine of 1921 swept away the population of whole districts.

Coupled with this, the prime reason for the breakdown was the lack of skilled labour and the collapse of transport and finance.—Reuter.

SUMMER FLOWERS IN WINTER

Horticulturists' New Discovery

Lafayette, Indiana. By cutting about 10 hours a night off the "sleep" of asters, dahlias, sweet peas and pansies, horticulturists of Purdue University claim to have discovered a commercially successful method of making these flowers bloom in winter as profusely as in midsummer.

The dahlias are bigger than the summer blooms, and the pansies flower in eight to 10 times their usual profusion.

The "sleep" of plants is their condition during the darkness of night when lack of light stops most of their synthesis of sugars and other plant materials.

SLEEP CUT DOWN.

In the experimental greenhouses the flowers were allowed to go to "sleep" as usual at sundown on winter days, but after about four hours rest in complete darkness they were awakened by artificial lights. These lights burned until sunrise, giving the plants the equivalent of a 20-hour working day.

About 40 varieties of flowers have been studied so far under the night lights. All showed that they can be made to bloom out of season, and several gave promise of excellent summer splendours after selection and out more precisely how much light each species needs.

The system permits this growth in any green-house with inexpensive equipment and at low cost, say the experimenters.—Reuter.

Strange Stories From Near and Far

GANG ATTACKS THE WRONG MAN

Here are some of the strange things in the news reported by Reuter correspondents everywhere. Six men attacked Santiago Trigueros, of Valencia, in Spain, as he was returning home. They beat him with clubs and took his money.

Then one of the men announced to the rest that they had attacked the wrong man. The gang apologized profusely, helped the man to his feet, restored his money—and disappeared.

Official records made public in Berlin reveal some curiosities of the German postal service.

In Dinkelsbühl, Upper Bavaria, there are still many houses where the postman delivers letters, not into a letter-box, but into a cloth or leather "pocket," which is let up and down, outside the house, with a string.

The highest post-office is 8,250 feet up in the "Schneefemhaus" of the Bavarian Zugspitze cable railway.

Mr. Harold Bruce Lewin, who is 71, has been tramping the open roads of Australia for the last ten years. He has walked 53,000 miles. A black lamb has been born in the village of Mezsek, Bulgaria, which has only one eye and a comb like a turkey.

Receiving orders were granted in a Bankruptcy Court at Singapore against a Chinese family, consisting of grandfather, father and son.—Reuter.

Kingdom of Atlantis

DISCOVERY OF ROYAL TOMB

Paris.

A royal tomb which may provide clues to the fabulous kingdom of Atlantis has been discovered in the Hoggar, the mountainous district to the Sahara inhabited by the blue-skinned Touareg warriors. Professor Gautier has been carrying out excavations at the tomb of Tin-Hinan, and has discovered no fewer than eleven chambers, each some nine feet by twelve, and leading out of each other.

The whole is enclosed by a ditch and a wall, with a single gateway, before which were found three iron arrow-heads.

These objects all reveal a civilisation dating from Greek or Roman days, but Professor Gautier has also unearthed twenty-five well-preserved skeletons, weapons dating from the stone age, fine prehistoric drawings and inscriptions in Tifinag, the ancient language of the Touaregs.

Everything points to the existence of a far distant civilisation in what is now the desert and which, by some sudden natural cataclysm, was overwhelmed.—Reuter.

PILGRIMAGE OF 10,000 MILES

ENDS WITH AUDIENCE WITH POPE

Rome.

Joseph Louis Wei, a Chinese Catholic pilgrim from Singapore, arrived in Rome after walking ten thousand miles in two years and two months. He received an audience of the Pope.

As though in answer to his prayer when Wei got to Jerusalem he heard that a Holy Year had been proclaimed, and that his long pilgrimage to Rome would gain double significance.

Wei had many thrilling and painful experiences during his long walk. Near Rangoon he was captured by brigands, who beat him on the soles of his feet and left him half-dead on the roadside.—Reuter.

WOMEN INVADE TWO MORE CLUBS

DWINDLING REFUGES OF BACHELORDOM

The great invasion by women of men's last stronghold, his club, proceeds apace.

The movement has gained force as a result of the recent decision of two more famous West End institutions, the Oxford and Cambridge and the St. James', to follow the example of many of their contemporaries in granting special facilities to women guests.

The one is now undertaking structural alterations providing for a ladies' dining-room to accommodate 70 persons; the other has made the concession that women guests may henceforth be entertained to lunch between 12 and 3 o'clock on Sundays.

Neither club was compelled by necessity to accede to the demand. Each took the step deliberately, chiefly at the instance of its younger members.

Ever since the War the number of clubs that have agreed to make arrangements for members to entertain their wives and friends has slowly been increasing. The list now includes the Junior Carlton, Guards, Bath, Bachelors' Reform, Devonshire, Junior United Service, the Royal Automobile Club, and many others.

The majority of these have built ladies' annexes, including swimming pools, dining, drawing and reception-rooms, and in some cases, squash courts. The most recent example is the Devonshire Club, a new ladies' wing having been opened only last week.

THE OLD GUARD.

No institution fought so vigorously for its principles of male exclusiveness as the Reform Club. The final resolution to admit women guests on Saturdays and Sundays was passed two years ago, similar proposals having been defeated again and again. In several other cases, too, the "revolution" was brought about only after heated discussions among the members, for the old guard of clubmen cling to their privileges.

There are still a number of staunch institutions, many of them with political associations, which are bound either by their rules or their traditions to ignore the claims of the feminists. The Athenaeum, White's—London's oldest club—Brooke's, Boodle's, the Army and Navy, and Buck's, are among those which will probably never succumb to the movement.

The Savage Club, famous as the haunt of literary and artistic celebrities, has one feature that distinguishes it from its contemporaries—its membership list contains the name of one lady, Dame Madge Kendal. The great actress was elected as an honorary life member in 1926.

So bachelorhood still has its refuges. But they are becoming rarer each year. Centuries-old traditions are gradually being swept aside as Eve continues on her all-conquering way.

RAILWAY SERVICE.

HOPE FOR RESUMPTION TO SHANKAIKUAN

Peking, June 5.

Hopes have been revived for the early resumption of the railway service between Peking and Shan-haikuan, and Chinese circles are also discussing the possibility, of through booking, if not through traffic, from Peking to Mukden. Passengers changing at Shan-haikuan and services on both sides of the Great Wall running in connection.—Reuter.

Charged with the theft, by false pretences, of a mah jong set and a table top, a Chinese, aged 22, was fined $50 or one month's gaol by Mr. Wynne-Jones in Court this morning. Defendant obtained the set on pretext that his "master" wanted it.

A woman earth-carrier, Leung Lee, was seriously injured in a fall from a new building in Bonham Road, yesterday.

A destitute Chinese woman attempted suicide by throwing herself from the Yau-mat-ferry Man Chee yesterday, but was rescued and removed to Hospital.

Aroused by a noise at the door, a Chinese teacher, living on the third floor of 38, Hollywood Road, went to investigate last night and found a Chinese lurking in the stairway. He chased him down the stairs and arrested the culprit in the entrance of the doorway. Sentence of one month was passed.

BRITISH MAPS OUT OF DATE

ORDNANCE SURVEY "STARVED"

POST-WAR CHANGE NOT RECORDED

The world-famous Ordnance Survey Map of Britain, which is the basis of English land-tenure, local government, regional planning, land drainage and transport, may soon be of value only to the historian; for this map, on which all others are based, is now considerably in need of correction—owing to the Geddes "Axe" and the unexampled re-development of Britain since the War.

Ever-increasing areas of the most important economic regions of the country are not to be found on the map, which is supposed to reproduce every house, hedge, and minutest detail of Britain. Scores of flourishing towns are not to be found upon it, and in many cases, if post-war conditions continue, will never be found.

If the present conditions continue, surveyors are agreed that some day it will become necessary to sacrifice all the work and expense of mapping England since the birth of the Ordnance Survey Department in 1791, and undertake a complete new survey, as of an unexplored land, at a cost of about $35,000,000.

The extent of the problem of maintaining the Ordnance Survey key map of Britain (on the scale of 25 inches to a mile), even at the standard to which it has already sunk, is only now being realised in consequence of the attempt to re-map Greater London.

DEPLETED STAFF.

Sixty field-surveyors, or one-half of the depleted field staff of the Department—before the War and the Geddes "cut" there were 600—are now concentrating on surveying, in a desperate attempt to revise those areas which have changed most completely in the past 20 years or so. Had the Survey Department been able to work there in 1923 and again in 1930 they could have revised certain sheets of the map, using the landmarks which were not then obliterated by development.

Now, however, it is being found that these landmarks have vanished completely in places, and enormous development has taken place, so that revision is impossible.

The land must be re-surveyed—a process which may take ten times as long as revision.

And while the surveyors' reduced band is spending 50 days in work that but for the Geddes cut would have taken five and trying to make an impression on one Survey corner, in Middlesex, Hertfordshire, Essex, Buckinghamshire, Co. Durham, Cheshire, Lancashire, and Birmingham, Glasgow, and the whole South Coast, the last landmarks indicated on the 20 years' old official map are being obliterated, making revision there, too, an impossibility.

OUTER LONDON'S DEMANDS.

Outer London alone is expected to occupy half the present field staff for the next ten years. By that time the map of London again will be out of date, as well as the rest of Britain. As it is, much of rural England depicted on the map was last corrected 50 years ago.

The consequences of this post-war surrender of our title as the best-mapped country in the world are already being felt. The Ordnance Survey Department has thrown to the winds its former programme of steady revision of England, region by region, and is leading forlorn attacks on the most deplorable "pit holes" in its 60,000 sheets.

Local government authorities are being driven to call in private firms, at enormous cost, to map their townships, since they appear on the national map in some cases merely as woods and windmills, and endless complaints are made to the Department for its supposed "slackness."

A CHANGED LAND.

Engineers and electricians, property owners and road-makers continually discover that the country and its maps have no inter-relation. The changed levels—Glamorgan has in places sunk six feet since the last levelling—lead to floods when they are least expected, and it is widely asserted that the disastrous floods of the River Thames in 1928 were due entirely to an alteration of a few inches in levels, which the Ordnance Survey Department, given adequate means, would have re-surveyed.

Yet the reversal of the "temporary" Geddes cut, at a cost to the nation of possibly $20,000 a year, is believed to be still all that is necessary to arrest the rot before too late.

A workman at the Kwan Yick Glass Factory at Shamshipo, was admitted to the Kwong Wah Hospital yesterday, with three fingers of his right hand crushed through being caught in a punching machine.

CHINA AT THE CHICAGO FAIR

COUNTRY'S GREATEST ACROBATS

Chicago.

The greatest troupe of Chinese acrobats in the world, the foremost actors and actresses of China, and scores of other attractions from across the Pacific have assembled in Chicago for China's exhibit at the World Fair.

Ziang Ling Chang, Chinese Commissioner to the Fair, proceeded immediately on arrival with the creation of a typical Chinese village on the Fair grounds, just south of the Jehol temple.

Commissioner Chang enthusiastically stated:—"We in China are confident that this will be one of the great expositions in history. For this reason we are bringing over here many valuable exhibits never before seen in the United States. The Chinese nation is intensely interested in the Fair and believes that here we will have the opportunity to show something of the real China."

One of the exhibits is a jade temple 14 feet high that required eighteen years to complete. There is also a wealth of porcelain, lacquerware, silks, embroideries, rugs, furs, carved ivories, furniture and other treasures.—Reuter.

SENSATIONAL LAWN BOWLS CHAMPIONSHIP RESULT

LANCASHIRE'S CRICKET NIGHTMARE

MACAULEY TAKES 12 FOR 49

London, June 5. Yorkshire gained their seventh and most brilliant county championship victory of the season today when they beat Lancashire in the North of England "Derby" by an innings and 156 runs.

It was a remarkable achievement made possible by their medium-fast bowler, G. C. Macauley, who, in the course of the game took 12 wickets for 49 runs.

Lancashire were skittled out for 93 and 92, and this is the second time this season that Yorkshire have twice dismissed their opponents for less than 100 runs in each innings. Leicester were the first victims and it was Macauley who then did the trick, capturing 12 wickets for 47 runs.

MACAULEY'S FIGURES.

Macauley had a splendid first innings analysis of 7 for 28.

and he followed this up with another fine piece of bowling which gave him figures of

5 for 21.

Yorkshire scored freely in their one and only visit to the crease putting 341 on the board ere the last wicket fell.

Mitchell led the way with a well compiled 123 and he received timely support from Barber, who contributed 62.

Lancashire were completely overawed by Macauley, and returned to the pavilion from their first visit to the wicket for 93 runs, whilst their second venture yielded only 92.

MAGNIFICENT RECORD.

Yorkshire, who seem destined to retain the championship, boast a fine record to date, having lost but one match and that a friendly against Cambridge, whilst all of their county championship programme has given them maximum points.

Their record to date is:

COUNTY CHAMPIONSHIP.

beat Lancashire by an innings and 156 runs beat Gloucester by ten wickets beat Glamorgan by 166 runs beat Leicester by an innings and 146 runs beat Kent by an innings and 24 runs beat Essex by ten wickets beat Derby by six wickets

OTHER MATCHES.

beat M.C.C. by 184 runs lost to Cambridge by 19 runs.

WORLD'S WELTER CHAMPIONSHIP

CORBETT BEATEN IN 1ST ROUND

Los Angeles, May 29. Jimmy McLarnin, the 26-year-old Irish-American boxer, is the new welterweight champion of the world. In what was to have been a 10-round bout here to-night with Young Corbett, the titleholder, McLarnin administered such severe punishment that the referee had to stop the fight in the first round, when it had lasted 2 min. 37 sec.

American Women Golfers

KEENER THAN ENGLISH COUSINS

London, May 30. American women are keener than English girls on golf. They seem to think golf, talk golf, and even dream golf, according to Miss Dix Perkins, a member of the British women's team back after an American tour.

She expressed the opinion, however, that the average American club players are not up to the standard of the club players over here.

The British women had only one criticism to make of their tour; that the golf courses on which they played are too long for women. "The courses taxed our stamina," said Miss Gresham. "The length involves too much jogging, and not enough premium is placed on iron shots."

STRANGE BEATEN ON POST

MACFARLANE'S RECOVERY

Hits Back After Being 20-12 Down

TWO OTHER MATCHES PLAYED

One of the most thrilling matches in the annals of the lawn bowls championship, in the course of which W. Macfarlane of the Kowloon Dock revealed an amazing fighting spirit, was seen at the Craighower last evening, when he defeated H.E. Strange of the Civil Service by 21 shots to 20.

Macfarlane was 19-6 and 20-12 to the bad at two stages of the match, but he recovered magnificently and bowling with great skill overhauled his opponent finally to snatch a sensational victory.

AN EARLY LEAD.

Strange was by far the superior bowler in the initial heads and jumped into a substantial lead. At the 13th he had scored 16 to Macfarlane's five and at the end of the next three heads had increased this to 19-6.

Macfarlane got in a nice two on the 17th, and a brilliant four on the 18th, only to see Strange snatch a single on the next head to put him in what appeared an unassailable position.

The Dock exponent, however, bowling with inspiration held off Strange until he had caught up at 20-all and then amidst tremendous excitement obtained a single.

K.C.C. SUCCESSES.

In another championship match V. C. Labrum (K.C.C.) eliminated H. G. Cooper (Kowloon Dock) by 21 shots to 15.

The pair remained on level terms until the 12th head but Labrum assumed the ascendancy from this point and ran out a fairly comfortable winner.

KENT CRICKETER MUST LEAVE ENGLAND

MARCHING ORDERS FOR FRED HUISH, EX-WICKET KEEPER

Fred Huish one of England's most famous county cricket wicket-keepers, who, prior to the War "kept" for Kent and achieved many feats behind the stumps, has been ordered out of England by the Home Secretary.

Sir John Gilmour informed Mr. Adam Maitland, M.P. for Faversham, that, in consultation with the Ministry of Labour, he carefully reconsidered the case of Mr. F. E. Huish, who, as a naturalised American citizen, had been ordered to leave England by May 20.

The Home Secretary stated that he regretted that Mr. Huish's case could not be treated differently from the many other cases of American citizens of British origin who wish to establish themselves again in this country.

Mr. Maitland is satisfied that the full facts have been placed before the authorities and that having regard to the unemployment existing in the country, the Home Secretary and the Minister of Labour have given Mr. Huish's case the most sympathetic consideration.

Mr. Huish is superintendent of the safety and welfare department of Briggs Bodies, Ltd., motor-body manufacturers, of Dagenham, Essex. He returned to England in 1932 after 13 years' work in the United States.

His Home Office permit of residence in the United Kingdom was for 12 months.

HUISH'S ACHIEVEMENTS.

Among the best achievements by Huish for Kent are: Took 102 wickets in 1913 (caught 70, stumped 32) and 100 wickets in 1911

(caught 62 and stumped 38). In 1908 he took 86 wickets, catching 57 and stumping 29.

In all Kent matches Huish caught 906 and stumped 356, a total of 1266.

He was succeeded by J. C. Hubble, who in turn gave place to Leslie Ames, the present wicket-keeper, who recently toured Australia and appeared in the Test teams.

FAR EASTERN GAMES Manchukuo Problem Enters into Situation

Officials of the Philippine Amateur Athletic Federation are faced with a problem in connection with the holding of the Far Eastern Games here next year.

The question involves the recognition of Manchukuo as an independent country in the Far East and is therefore eligible for competition in the Oriental classics. The Japanese Athletic Federation has already suggested in a letter to the executive committee of the P.A.A.F. to invite Manchukuo to take part in the meet.

The admittance in the Far Eastern meet may bring a protest from the Chinese officials. The gravity of this problem has caused the P.A.A.F. to defer action.

Manchukuo made an attempt to take part in the last world's olympic games held at Los Angeles, but the international federation refused to recognize this country as an independent state, and the application was turned down. It is said. Japan, and French Indo-China are already sure of participating in the Far Eastern championships games to be held here next year. The invitation sent to China by the local amateur athletic federation has not been answered.

SPORTS MEET FOR MANCHUKUO.

Mukden, May 30. At the meeting of its directors held here recently, the Manchukuo Athletic Association decided to extend an invitation to the Japan Amateur Sports Union to send representative athletes to the Manchukuo Athletic Meet to be held at Dairen and Hsinking this summer.

The Japan-Manchukuo Athletic Meet will open in Hsinking on July 16.

MALAYAN CHINESE TO HOLD SPORTS MEET

Event Will Be Held at Kuala Lumpur

Singapore, May 22. The Second Malayan Chinese athletic meet, according to the decision of the Joint Committee of the various centres of Malaya at a meeting held in Singapore recently, will be held in Kuala Lumpur on August 4, this year.

Mr. Av. Boon Haw, the proprietor of the Tiger Medical Hall, has again been elected patron of the Committee. He has again promised to foot the expense of the meet.

The Singapore Chinese will hold their athletic events on July 7, to select the representatives of Singapore to the Kuala Lumpur competition.

AMATEURS MUST BE REAL AMATEURS

STRICT RULING ON BRITISH STATUS BY UNION

London, June 1. The definition of an amateur golfer in England has been made stricter than ever by a decree of the English Golf Union.

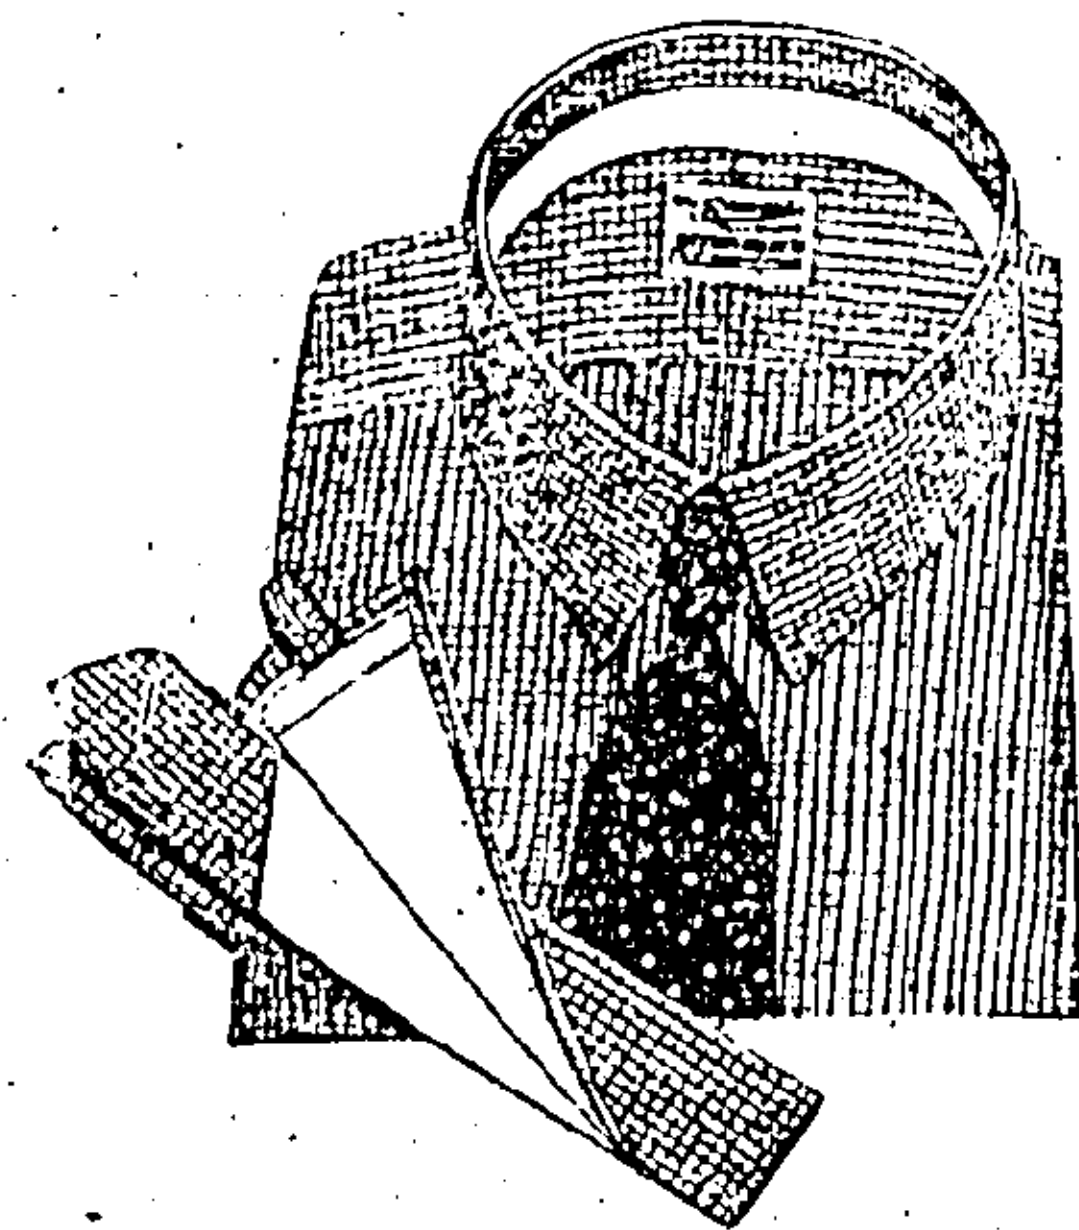

In future, says the Union, no amateur may receive gifts of any kind for golfing performances from outside sources. The decision was based on the consensus of opinion of an overwhelming majority of the 950 affiliated clubs. For many years it has been the custom of the leading manufacturers to give away literally thousands of golf-balls at the important tournaments, the advertisement of a potential winner using a particular ball being worth the expenditure. This practice, for amateurs at least, will now cease, it is understood.

In any case the ruling directly affects the advertising stunt of a well-known whiskey firm, which offered a bottle of its liquor for every hole in one. In one year alone the firm distributed over 1,000 bottles.

Some golf ball firms have hitherto given a box of balls for holding in one shot, and cigar and cigarette firms also gave prizes.

SOVIET'S POET
LAUREATECELEBRATION OF 50TH BIRTHDAY

DEMIAN BYEDNY

Moscow.

The fiftieth anniversary of the birth of Demian Byedny—the Poet Laureate of the Bolsheviks—was celebrated in the U.S.S.R. recently.

The Presidium of the Central Committee of the U.S.S.R. has awarded him the Order of Lenin for his literary work and the services it has rendered to the working class.

He received congratulations from the Central Committee of the Communist Party, the Council of People's Commissars, and from various literary and social organizations.

Byedny, whose real name is Efim Alexeyevich Prodanov, is the son of a peasant and probably the most popular writer in modern Russia. He has been writing in revolutionary, Bolshevik papers since 1910 and his work played an important part in Bolshevik propaganda during the civil war.—

MUSSOLINI WANTS A BETTER BREED

New York.
Forty frogs arrived here recently from California by aeroplane en route for Italy, where they will start a colony intended to provide frogs sufficient for Italy's use.

The emigrants are travelling under the orders of Premier Mussolini, who directed his governmental agents to improve the size and breed of Italian frogs.

The shipment was transferred from the plane to a Belgian steamer. At Antwerp they will be placed aboard a plane for the final lap of their journey. The frogs and the trip will cost about $1,500.
Experts estimate there should be 10,000 to 20,000 eggs from each female frog by the end of June.—

CINEMA SCREENINGS.

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

Saturday night, which used to be known as the night of the bath, and which now rates higher as "date night" for the general public, is the inspiration for "Hot Saturday" which commences on Thursday at the Queen's Theatre. It is the story of a girl who chose that evening to "walk home" only to find the next morning that she has suffered all the shame of not having done so.

Cary Grant, six-foot English newcomer to the screen; red-headed Nancy Carroll; well established favourite; and Randolph Scott play the leading roles.

Miss Carroll is cast as a girl who is made a subject of gossip by other women jealous of her popularity with men, and by the barber-shop sheiks who have been disappointed.

Saturday night is play night for the entire crowd. And on Saturday when she had begun to walk home to escape the embraces of a too-determined suitor, they see their opportunity to pillory her. Through town they spread the story that she has spent the night with Grant, a millionaire playboy, who has a summer home nearby.

The rumour costs her job, almost costs her her home.

"Hell Divers"

The first talking picture to feature the newest and most sensational type of aircraft, the fighting bombers, was "Hell Divers," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's vivid drama of the air which will be shown on Thursday at the Oriental Theatre and Wallace Beery and Clark Gable in co-starring roles.

The title of the picture is the same as the nickname of these Curtiss-Wright divers, which hurl themselves straight down, five thousand feet or more, hurl bombs and then "straighten out" in the most breath-taking evolution ever invented.

They reach a diving speed of over 350 miles an hour. One of them can dive ten thousand feet—nearly two miles—in less than fifty seconds. The picture, in which prominent supporting roles are played by Conrad Nagel, Dorothy Jordan, Marjorie Rameau and Marie Prevost, was filmed aboard the aircraft carrier Saratoga, amid the thrills of the Panama manoeuvres.

Men Must Fight.

One of the most unusual pictures to come out of Hollywood is Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Men Must Fight," which is showing to-day and tomorrow at the Queen's Theatre. It offers a glimpse ahead to the year 1940 when, say the authors, the United States may be plunged into another war. But it is not intended as a war picture—rather it purports to prevent war by warning of a horror which the future will bring upon those who remain at home when

Do Nerves Cause Rheumatism?

In an indirect way rheumatism can often be traced to nerve weakness. Nervous tension interferes with the digestive processes and sets up stomach acidity. The acid poisons thus generated are set free into the blood stream and become lodged in various parts of the body, causing these aching pains which, although they feel as though they are actually in the bones, are really only in the tissues surrounding the bones. And sometimes the poisons lodge around the joints, causing terrible agony, as all sufferers know.

A treatment which has proved successful in many thousands of cases, in all parts of the world, is a course of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills go right to the root of the trouble. They possess the rare faculty of being able to create new supplies of pure rich red blood. This new infusion of the vital fluid feeds the nerves and strengthens digestion thus putting an end to the acidity which is the cause of the rheumatic poisons. The weak and poison-laden blood is soon eliminated and a healthy bloodstream, free from the acid crystals, is obtained.

In this way Dr. Williams' Pink Pills accomplish what all the anti-acid compounds and external applications can never achieve. By building up blood and nerves Dr. Williams' Pink Pills remove the cause of rheumatism, invigorate the system and attain results that are permanent. All chemists can supply you.

A brilliant cast enhances the telling of this dramatic tale. First honours go to Diana Wynyard, Lewis Stone, Phillips Holmes and Ruth Selwyn. Miss Wynyard stars a forceful and sympathetic portrayal as the woman whose lover was killed in the World War and who precipitates a veritable war of her own to prevent her son from being sacrificed to future international conflict.

Lewis Stone is seen in another of his flawless character portrayals. As the son who refuses to fight, Phillips Holmes has what is probably the most difficult role of his screen career.

"Week Ends Only"

A playwright at the age of eight, a schoolgirl in France at fifteen, a runaway in an elopement at seventeen, a mother the following year, an actress who scored an impressive success with her first and only stage role, and an even greater success in her first picture, she is now three years ago and in the fifteen she has made since. Joan Bennett has crammed plenty of experience into her youthful career.

Along with her dramatic heritage from a line of distinguished players, her wistful beauty and her flashing wit, this background has put depth and power into her portrayals. Few film actresses have progressed so swiftly and surely into popular favour as has Richard Bennett's youngest daughter. Her first screen roles were designedly innocuous, since no one knew the extent of her dramatic talent. The parts were written chiefly to take advantage of her fragile loveliness, which was certain to score in any case.

Soon, however, the slender Joan proved conclusively that she could act, and not brilliantly. Also she displayed unmistakable abilities as a comedienne. Both the public and the producers discovered these facts, and bigger and better roles resulted. Her original timidity pictures, partially assuaged by her initial success, was eliminated entirely and in its place came the sureness and conviction that marked her subsequent performances.

Her latest appearance, and perhaps the most polished of all her appear-

Her frantic search for a job and kind of a job results in her creation of a new feminine profession as a paid week-end hostess for society gatherings, and this in turn brings about a hectic three-sided romance with Ben Lyon and Joan Halliday as the rival suitors.

PLANS FOR EVACUATED LUAN HO ZONE

Peking, June 5. Yu Hsueh-chung, who has been visiting General Ho Ying-ching and General Huang Fu, states that the control of the demilitarized zone will be left entirely to the discretion of the provincial government of Hopei, which would appoint magistrates and Directors of Public Safety as the Japanese withdrew.

Yu Hsueh-chung also announced that the provincial government is reducing taxes collectable in the war-stricken area.—Reuter.

Police for North

Peking, June 5. A special force of 25,000 men is being raised to control the demilitarized zone created under the terms of the Sino-Japanese truce. It is learned that the nucleus of the force will be a picked body of the Tientsin Paoanli, which in recent years performed a wonderful service in an area where Chinese troops are not allowed under the Boxer Protocol, being responsible for the suppression of troubles in Tientsin during November, 1931.

The question of disposition of General Li Chi-chun's irregulars still remains unsettled and General Hsiung Ping is going to Tientsin again to continue the negotiations with the Japanese authorities there.—Reuter.

MATTERN SAFE

REACHES OSLO AFTER OCEAN FLIGHT

Oslo, Norway, June 5. Lieutenant James Matern, American aviator who is attempting to complete a solo flight around the world, arrived safely here. He flew across the North Atlantic from Newfoundland, having hopped off from Harbour Grace in the early morning of June 3.

Matern did not stop long for rest, but refueled and continued his journey towards Moscow.

It was on the flight from Berlin to Moscow last year, that Matern and his flying companion of that trip, Captain Bennett Griffin, crashed their machine. Both were injured, and the plane was demolished.—Reuter.

RUSSIA AND JAPAN

MOSCOW PROTESTS ON RAILWAY INTERRUPTION

Moscow, June 5.

Another protest to Japan regarding the Chinese Eastern Railway dispute has been handed by M. Sokolnikov, deputy Foreign Commissar, to Mr. Ota, Japanese Ambassador to Moscow.

This time the protest is against the interruption of direct communication between the Chinese Eastern and Ussuri Railways at Pogranichnaya, where the switches were severed by order of the Manchukuo Government.

The Soviet alleges that the interruption is in violation of the treaty signed in 1924 and the special agreement between the Chinese Eastern and Ussuri railway administrations.

The fact that the interruption was carried out by Mr. Sato, Japanese official in the Manchukuo Ministry of Communications, confirms the Soviet's contention, expressed in the Note of May 31, that the Japanese are responsible for the action of the Manchukuo authorities.

The statement adds that the Soviet cannot but protest against these systematically prepared and inadmissible actions, obviously directed at the exacerbation of relations between the two countries.

The Note concludes by hoping that the necessary measures will be taken to restore the status quo ante and that the Chinese Eastern Railway problem will be solved.—Reuter Special.

CHIMNEY COLLAPSE.

THREE CHINESE INJURED IN CITY STREET

Great excitement prevailed in a side street off Connaught Road Central yesterday afternoon, when part of a galvanised iron chimney became dislodged and fell from the roof of the Tai Chung Wah Hotel, landing on three Chinese, who were gathered on the kerb. The iron fell a height of four storeys, and three Chinese were injured, two seriously. They were taken to the Government Civil Hospital for treatment.

The injured men were Chiu Kam, 16, Chiu Lau, 29, both described as unlicensed hawkers, and Wong Chuk, 40, of Third Street. They were struck on the back of the head by the falling iron piping, which measured about five feet in length.

Phenomenal Whitsuntide Heat Wave Continues

STRONG MEASURES

LANCASHIRE AND JAPAN

MEMORANDUM TO MR. RUNCIMAN

London, June 6.

The Executive Committee of the cotton trade organisations have addressed a Memorandum to Mr. Walter Runciman, President of the Board of Trade, in the matter of the proposed Anglo-Japanese discussions.

The memorandum urges that should the Japanese delay in sending representatives to the proposed conversations, the British Government should proceed with formal notice to abrogate the trade treaties.

Meanwhile, the Government should arrange in the different Empire markets for the imposition of substantial margins of preference or the control of imports by quotas, which might be reconsidered if the proposed conversations led to a situation justifying reconsideration.

If the conversations break down, the Government should make a pact with Holland to protect the Anglo-Dutch Far Eastern colonies from unfair competition by the Japanese cotton industry.—Reuter.

NINETY DEGREES IN SHADE

CROWDS FLOCK TO THE SEASIDE

MOONLIGHT BATHING

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, June 6, 12.17 p.m.)

LONDON, JUNE 6.

EXTRAORDINARY SCENES WERE VISIBLE IN THE STREETS OF LONDON YESTERDAY WHEN LONDONERS SEEMED TO BE WILTING UNDER THE HOTTEST WHITSUNTIDE WEATHER FOR AS LONG AS CAN BE REMEMBERED.

The streets were full of hatless and coatless pedestrians, reminiscent of a New York summer's day.

To-night, many residents slept in gardens, the suburbs presenting a strange spectacle to the passers-by.

The thermometer, starting at a higher level than Sunday, again soared to 87 degrees in the shade, while at Brighton, the heat was even more intense, a temperature of ninety degrees being registered in the South Coast resort.

The whole of the South of England is sweltering in the heat wave, which promises to continue for some little time.

On the South Coast, and at all the seaside resorts near London, hundreds of people spent the evening bathing in the moonlight and then went to sleep on the sands.

All the trains bound from London to the coast were packed with excursionists. The South of England bore every appearance of the height of summer. Queues were lining up at the open-air swimming baths, the boat-houses on the Thames did a roaring trade, all craft on the river being engaged at an early hour.

The heat did not abate during the night, and those who did not seize the opportunity of sleeping in the open, had an uncomfortable time.

The fête-fairs in different parts of the country were crowded with people.—Reuter.

FAIR TO SHOWERY.

Lt. J. C. Richardson, of the South Wales Borderers, was summoned before Mr. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy this morning, with having caused obstruction by parking his car outside the Peak Hotel. A fine of $5 was imposed.

CHINA AND THE PHILIPPINES

TRADE WARNING BY CONSUL

GIVING WAY TO JAPAN

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, June 6, 11.16 a.m.)

Shanghai, June 6.

In a special article to-day the China Press quotes Mr. K. L. Kwong, Chinese Consul-General in Manila, as saying that China will lose her commercial foothold in the Philippines to the Japanese within the next ten years if her merchants in the islands don't quickly pull together their resources and if the Philippine legislature should continue to place obstacles in the way of the natural development of Sino-Philippine trade.

Mr. Kwong has just returned from Manila for the purpose of laying before the National Government proposals for the improvement of Sino-Philippine trade.

The Consul-General emphasises that while the Chinese population and Chinese trade in the Philippines have decreased during the past few years, the Japanese population and Japanese trade has been steadily increasing.—Reuter.

SOVIET ORDERING BATTLESHIPS

London, June 6.

The Daily Telegraph understands that the Soviet Government is in negotiation with Italian shipbuilding firms for the construction of four seven-thousand-ton cruisers, with very powerful armament, and a submarine of it is reported, 3,800 tons.

The ships are for special service in the Pacific Ocean.—Reuter.

DALADIER TO HEAD DELEGATION

FOUR-POWER PACT TO BE HELD BACK

ECONOMICS AND DISARMAMENT

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, June 6, 9.15 a.m.)

Paris, June 5.

It has practically been decided that M. Daladier, the Prime Minister, will himself head the French delegation to the World Economic Conference.

It is possible that after the more important stage have been passed, M. Daladier will leave matters in the hands of M. Caillaux, the famous French financial expert, and M. Bonnet, the Finance Minister in the Daladier Government.

The decision is regarded as having considerable significance. It was originally intended that M. Caillaux, who is not a member of the Cabinet, but who is universally recognised as France's outstanding economic and monetary expert, should be entrusted with the charge of the French delegation.

SECURITY ISSUE.

The change from M. Caillaux to M. Daladier is attributed in some quarters to the Premier's determination to strike a cast-iron balance as between French security and her disarmament.

Many observers of current developments in European political affairs would not be surprised if the Four Power Pact, upon which disarmament is now pivoted, hangs fire until the opening stages of the World Economic Conference which will be formally opened by His Majesty the King on Monday next.—Reuter.

GRANT FROM THE BOXER FUND

Shanghai, June 6.

At an all-day meeting held yesterday, the Board of Trustees of the British Boxer Indemnity Fund, decided to advance $4,500,000 to the Minister of Railways for the construction of the remaining portion of the Canton-Hankow Railway.

The Trustees also decided to make an advance of $350,000 to the China Merchants Steam Navigation Company. The money will be used for the building of six new ships for the company. The ships will be built in Great Britain.

The two loans, which represent at current rates of exchange approximately $50,000,000 will be the biggest advances ever made to the Chinese authorities by the Board of Trustees.

The Board is also reported to be giving favourable consideration to further loans for educational and communication purposes.—Reuter.

ALLEGHANY STOCK REVELATIONS

RAIL MAGNATE QUESTIONED

Washington, June 5.

The feature of the Senate investigation of the Morgan Company's operations to-day was the examination of the well-known railway magnate, Mr. Oris Paxton Van Sweringen.

Mr. Van Sweringen is the chairman of the Board of the Missouri Pacific Railroad, and he organised the Alleghany Securities Holding Corporation in 1920.

The Alleghany stock has been the subject of much discussion during the enquiry. It being alleged that the shares in the holding corporation were obtained by Morgan's and passed on to favoured clients at low price.

RASKOB LETTER.

It is alleged that Mr. John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, had the privilege of purchasing Alleghany stock at prices far below the prevailing market quotations. A letter was produced written by Mr. Raskob, thanking Mr. Morgan for the favour and adding: "I hope the future will offer me an opportunity to reciprocate."

Mr. W. H. Woodin, the Secretary to the Treasury Department, is also said to have obtained Alleghany stock and to have sold it almost immediately at the much higher ruling market price.

Those who are demanding that Mr. Woodin's resignation declare that as Mr. Morgan could have sold all the shares in the open market and made a huge profit for himself, the privilege extended to Mr. Woodin was nothing more than a gift.

Colonel Charles Lindbergh also comes under the heading of those who made immediate profits out of Alleghany stock by the same process.

"RAILWAY EMPIRE".

Questioned by Mr. Ferdinand Pecora, the counsel who is himself the subject of attack, Mr. Van Sweringen described Mr. J. P. Morgan's part in building up the vast "Railway Empire," and said the Morgan firm lent $5,200,000 in the years 1923 and 1924 to the Nickel Plate Railway and $9,600,000 in 1927 to the Chesapeake Corporation, which was formed by Mr. Van Sweringen to purchase control of the Chesapeake-Chicago Railway.

The witness added that he often consulted Morgan's as "world-wide counsellors in financial matters."—Reuter.

PROMINENT LEADERS APPEAL

The release of all political prisoners, the withdrawal of the Ordinances, and the issue of an invitation to Congress to collaborate in shaping the new Constitution is urged in a telegram sent to Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, Mr. Stanley Baldwin and Sir Samuel Hoare.

The authors are sixty prominent Indians, including Dr. Tagore, Mr. Sinha and Mr. G. D. Birla.

It is argued that such co-operation is made possible by the truce which has been agreed by Congress in regard to civil disobedience.

TOP CHIC FOR STREET WEAR

Topping the mode this spring are street costumes whose waist treatment and hats are de-nou and intimately related to each other. A crisp white pique vestee gives this corded coat frock—and at the same time is very practical for it may be removed for simply by unfastening the two huge pearl buttons that anchor it at the neckline. Under pique finish the flaring sleeves. Very smart is the white hat made of the same pique. The square, soldierly cape suit with organ pleating stopped the show at Schiaparelli's Paris opening. This copy is handsome navy crepe, the dress made with pastel pink crepe top tied in a "bag" neckline. The removable cape has a big satin bow. The little chapeau is blue, draped to a high-hat line.

YOUR CHILDREN.

Childhood Fears May Grow into Adult Terrors

By Olive Roberts Barton

"I cannot really enjoy anything," said the young woman, "because I have a sort of fear or terror behind it."

"Most of us have a certain heaviness of heart we can't shake off," I replied.

"I don't know how other people are. I've often wondered," she said. "I hope everyone isn't like me. Ever since I was a little girl I have had a dread of something. I can't tell what it is. Maybe I'm what they call a moral coward. Perhaps I can't face life. But really I never enjoy anything. No matter how happy I ought to be—no matter what's going on, a party, or new clothes on—or spring, I have a heavy heart. I know I am abnormal for some reason or other!"

Rare or Common? I had my doubts about that and said so. Is she really abnormal, this unhappy young person who cannot seem to find unadulterated joy in anything she does? On the contrary, if the truth were known, I believe she is more common than uncommon. I believe there are thousands of adults and children who cannot shake off this feeling of dread, or heaviness, no matter what happens.

Psychologists tell us that it is a hangover from those days when man lived in constant terror of his life. Perhaps. But do all wild animals live with dread in their hearts? Aren't the forest birds happy even when they sing? Is there always the shadow of the imaginary hawk or eagle over their lives?

Again it may be caused by extreme ego, where the world rotates around self. Usually the introvert not happy. The sensitive soul can never forget himself and ever imagines trouble—he really jumps ahead to seize it and bring it to his heart.

But I cannot believe this is the answer either. I believe it lies outside of either personality or heredity. I believe it is the result of a succession of shocks in early childhood.

It is fear in its most terrible form.

Books tell us that we are born with certain indescribable fears, including that of death.

Don't Frighten Children

It proves no point particularly concerning these terror-ridden people. It is hardly conceivable that some would have it in such an exaggerated sense while others never know what it means at all. A little child frightened of his father may develop a perpetual terror, or too frequently frightened by things he doesn't understand and forced to face them. I think it is more likely to be something he has to live with than the occasional fright of a storm or an animal or the dark. Deep impressions are caused by repetition.

This is why I think it important that early childhood be happy. Happy, simple, quiet, normal, uncomplicated and free of excitement. We never know what Frankenstein is being formed in embryo in small hearts to rise and haunt them later.

The capacity for happiness in later life depends on a contented childhood.

By Alicia Hart

Mother's make-up should never ape daughter's.

Older skins need different treatment. Older cheeks and lips call for quite different effects.

The sophisticated older woman knows the value of a skillful hand at applying rouge and lipstick. Less rouge, subtler use of lipstick, and everything put on after a nice greasing.

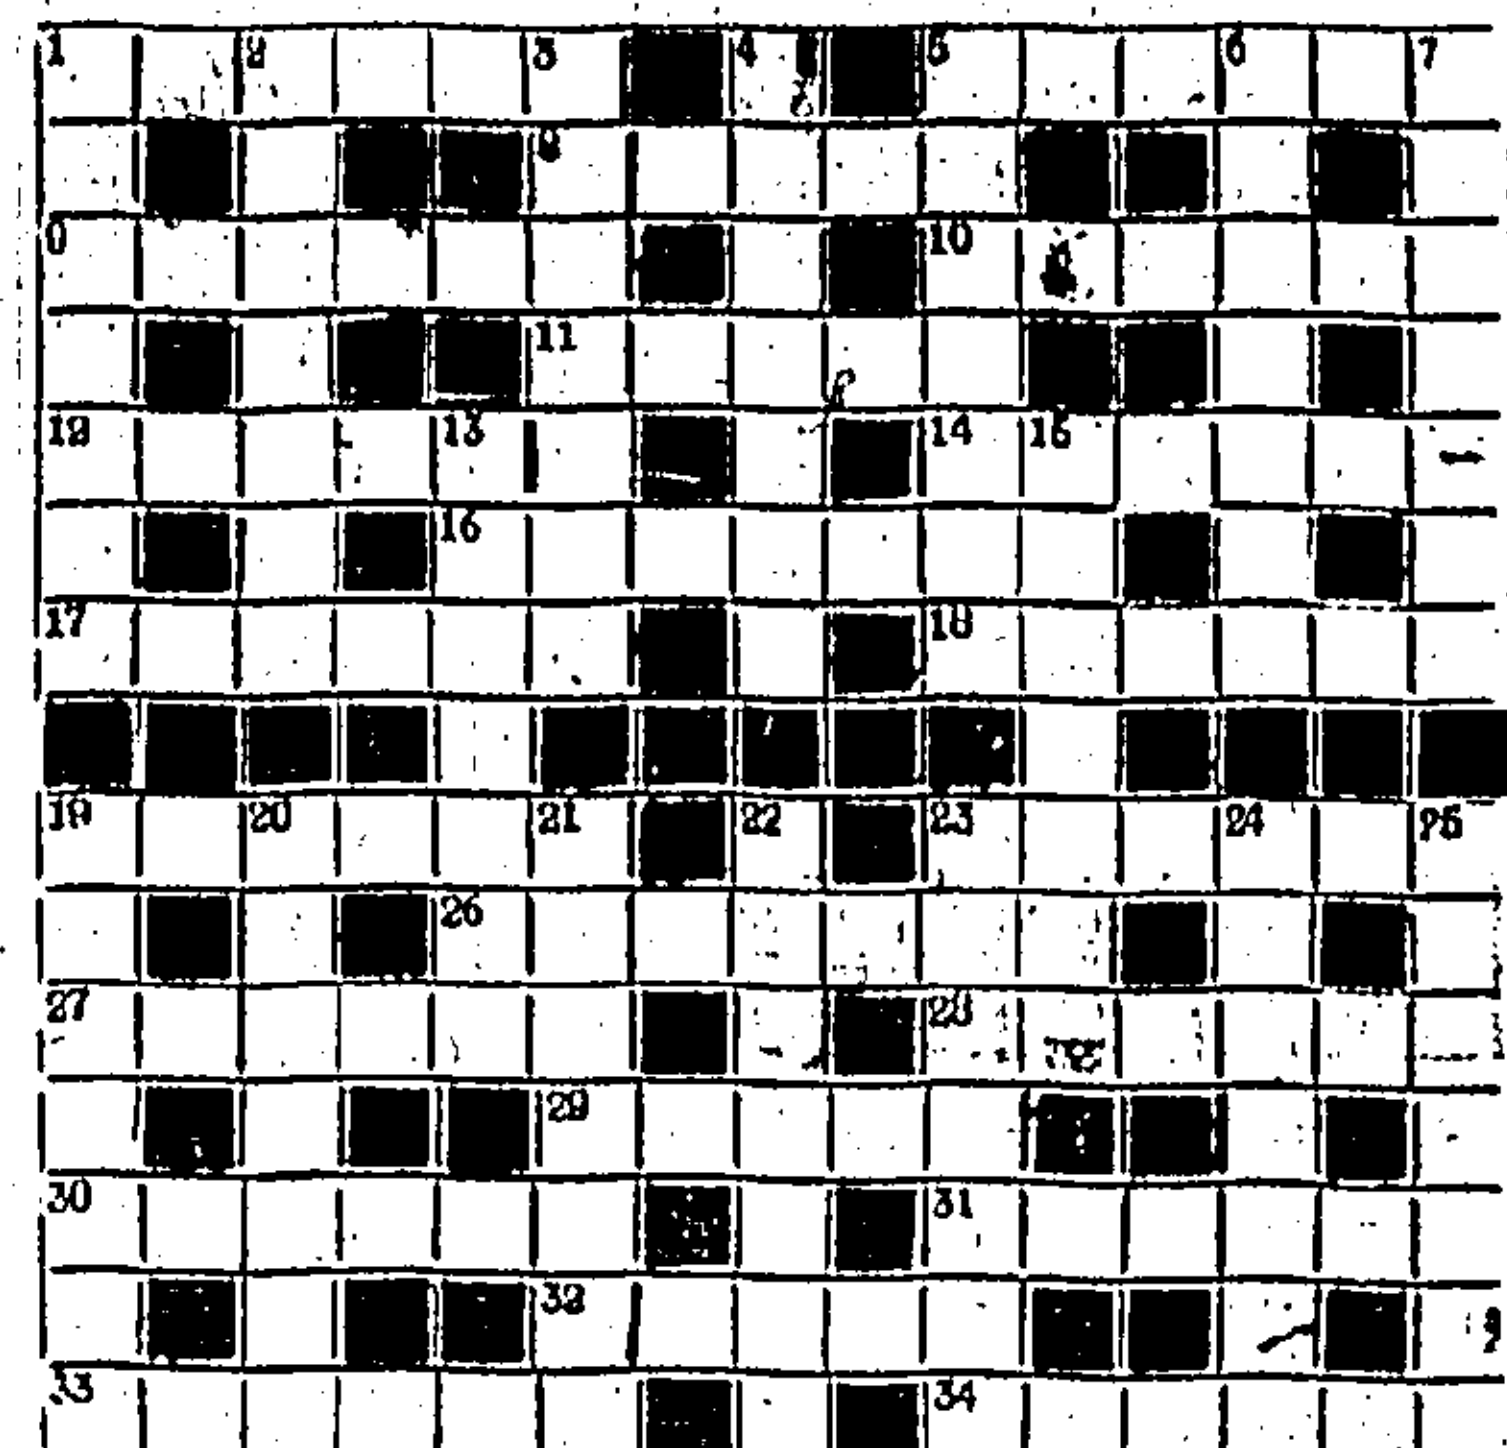

Grasping is really the word. For skins after 35 years are drier and there's no use miming words. The average older woman needs more of that bloom-on-the-peach dewiness than she does colour. And it is the right creams and powder bases which will give it.

Eye lids, instead of needing colour, cry out for a dewy look. You'll be surprised how a little muscle oil or some special eyelid cream will help out. It hides those fine little wrinkles that will come. And leaving the eyelids just a bit greased makes your eyes look much younger.

Try a little of brilliantine on both your eyebrows and your lashes. This is a marvelous little helper. Having your eyelashes and brows properly groomed is half the battle.

When it comes to picking rouge and lipstick, if your hair is gray or white, choose a light red tone, a blonde shade. And don't use too much. And always use a cream powder base for your cheeks and run a little cold cream over your lips. Try these little hints. Every one of them is worth while.

LOVE or MONEY?

BY H. W. CORLEY

CHAPTER XLVIII

The tall man turned sharply. "Miss Moran—that is to say, Mrs. Townsend! And Barry! Why, this is a piece of luck! I wonder how it happened?"

"We were here shopping," Mona explained. Then, feeling rather foolish, she asked, "You came on the Helena?"

"Yes. Let's go somewhere where we can talk," said Mr. Garretson, swinging a cane at a mule team the driver of which was affably waiting for the three to move before attempting to proceed. "I can never get used to these vehicles. Give me Fifth Avenue and 42nd street any day!"

They moved into the shadow of the postoffice.

"I came to see you, Mrs. Townsend," the lawyer went on, "but they told me at the steamship office I might leave the steamer here and chance finding a boat to carry me across to Holiday Island or that I could go to Port of Spain and charter a plane."

He smiled beamingly. "I came ashore to inquire and here I find you!"

"We'll get your baggage," Barry announced hospitably, "and then run you over to Holiday in no time. We were just starting—had been waiting for the mail."

The luggage was on board the Helena and Barry said he would go for it. "Just give me your checks," he said. "Well then, if you haven't checks, your cabin key will do."

"Let's all go together," suggested Mona. Mr. Garretson seconded the remark.

"I thought you might like to have tea," Barry said, hesitating. "It's going to be dark soon. We'll have to shove off before long."

"Oh, tea can wait," agreed Mr. Garretson and Mona in the same breath. It was as though neither of them cared to be left in the company of the other just then.

"She doesn't want to be alone with me," the lawyer decided. "Maybe she thinks I'll interfere if she wants to marry that boy."

"He knows Barry wants me to marry him," thought Mona, "and he's here to prevent it. Just let him try!" Suddenly she knew that all along she had been determined to marry Barry. She wanted to seize Barry's arm and tell him so, to kiss his cheek and end this foolish uncertainty forever. Let the sailors' home, the orphanage have the Townsend millions. What did she care? She and Barry could take care of themselves.

Instantly she knew what she had really known always but had refused to recognize—that she would marry Barry on his own terms.

Blindly she followed him to the jetty, clambered aboard the motor launch and seated herself while Barry adjusted the wheel. The launch glided, sputtering, out toward the Helena.

Mr. Garretson, across from Mona, smiled as the cooling breezes struck him. It was as though he, too, had a secret.

"He thinks he's here in time," Mona told herself.

The stewards came running down the companionway with Mr. Garretson's bags. They stowed them beneath the launch seats. Waving the lawyer away, Barry tossed the boys a handful of silver. The Water Sprite backed away from the ladder and then, whirling, made off for the space between the two arms of green shore.

"Are you near here?" Mr. Garretson asked.

The boat sped onward silently. Before they reached the harbour at Holiday Island's mind was made up. Dinner was served on the verandah. Steve, leaning on a cane but in excellent spirits, came to join them. Dr. Allen was in the background. Lottie was at Steve's side.

Mona had barely time to bathe and dress. She did this, hurrying, but she had never looked more beautiful. She was going to marry Barry! She was going to defy Mr. Garretson, toss the fortune back where it had come from and brave all for love!

What did she care for money? Barry was right in insisting that he didn't want his uncle's wealth. They would have enough and more.

But as she went out on the verandah to sit before dinner her heart smote her. Mr. Garretson had come on business, that was certain. Could it concern the Empress? Possibly he meant to ask her about her intended sale of the diamond. Perhaps, as executor of the estate, he would forbid it.

"It doesn't matter!" she told herself. "I'll marry Barry in spite of everything and everyone!"

She wished Lottie were not quite so engrossed in Steve. Lottie's good-natured chatter would have been a comfort. Mr. Garretson, in fresh linen, praised the dinner—the deliciously seasoned vegetables, the steak brought from Granada. He raised his coffee cup, remarking on the delicacy of the fine china.

The fruit centerpiece, so carefully arranged by Miss Gracie, pleased him too. It would have pleased anyone to whom a fruit centerpiece meant the inevitable oranges, bananas and apples. Here were nectarines, grapes and yellow-jade oranges, gleaming against a dark green bowl.

"You have fishing here?" "Lots of it. In the bay half-way around the island. We'll take you to-morrow if you like."

The maids cleared the table. Mona rose, followed by the others, and walked out on the terrace where the deck chairs commanded a view of the stars.

"Those must be the port lights of the S. S. Helena," Mr. Garretson said, pointing to the chain of lights along the horizon.

"She's due at Barbadoes in the morning," responded Barry. Presently he rose to go for tobacco. Mr. Garretson said that he preferred Turkish cigarettes when he could get them and Barry remembered they had brought a supply.

The others were chatting busily. Mona rose too and slipped away. "Barry!" She stood in the doorway of his study, a dim, cool shadow. He had not turned on the lights, was groping in the darkness expecting each moment to find the cigarette tin.

"Barry! You've asked me many times to marry you. Now I'm asking you. Will you marry me, Barry?" She drew nearer. She could see him straighten in the dark, lay his hand on the desk to stop its trembling.

"Found them?" she asked. "Found what?" Barry said, as though dazed. Then he added quickly, "Oh, the cigarettes. Yes, they're here."

"I asked you a question, Barry. Will you marry me?" "You'll lose the money," he reminded her dully. "We'll be as poor as church mice."

"But we'll have the mine—" "I had a letter to-day from Foster," he went on. "Things aren't going any too well. We need another Empress."

"Oh, the Empress!" She would tell him soon that she owned the Empress and that she was about to sell it. She would have the cheque drawn to the mine. That would do. But she would not tell him all that yet.

She was very near now. He could feel the delicious mist of her hair across his bare face, could see the dim outline of her slender body. Her cheek touched his, smoothly cool. Through the window they could see the wavering of the lighted cigars on the terrace.

"Are you, Barry?" The girl's voice was very low. "I'll give you three guesses!" Suddenly Mona found herself in his arms.

CARDINAL MACRORY LAYS FOUNDATION STONE

London, June 5. The foundation stone of the vast Metropolitan Roman Catholic Cathedral at Liverpool, which will cost £3,000,000, was laid to-day in the presence of 250,000 people from all parts of the country. The Irish Cardinal Archbishop Macrory of Armagh replaced Cardinal Bourne, is very ill, as Papal Legate.

FISHING JUNK SUNK IN COLLISION

After leaving Mongkok at 6 a.m. yesterday, a fishing junk came into collision with the steam-launch Sing Yuen. The boat was holed near the bows. The vessel sank rapidly.

There were no casualties, the crew of the junk being rescued.

heels in love with Miss Carr. Anyone could see that. Pretty girl, too. I like her. Mona now—she's deeper! I wonder if she is in love with Barry? I wonder what she'll say when I tell her that she can marry him after all. Barry him and keep her fortune! She'll be surprised to know the will reads: 'My beloved wife, Mona Townsend, must not change her name by giving herself in marriage.'

Mona wouldn't change her name—not a hair's breadth—by marrying young Barry!

The lawyer strolled back to the bed and instantly, with an outburst of mild profanity, found himself entangled in the mosquito-proof draperies. They required, as he observed, special handling.

At last he was safe in bed. The swaying of the palms, the beating of the waves were the only sounds to break the stillness.

alter it in two ways. He would provide an avenue for fairly rapid promotion for outstanding men who join as constables. But he would also provide for "a direct recruitment into the officer posts of men who have acquired good educational qualifications before appointment, and are selected as suitable in respect of personality and physique." He would make it a service which would appeal to ambitious and capable youth of every class. He would make it a more educated profession.

SUPREMELY IMPORTANT.

The matter is of supreme public importance. I do not think that Lord Trenchard's diagnosis of the present weakness can be disputed, or the value of the remedy he suggests. He is a distinguished soldier, but no man is more free from military prejudice. To militarise the police would be the worst of blunders, for half their value is due to the fact that they are not a cast-iron hierarchy but very near to the ordinary man. But the increasing complexity of their duties and the present unsettlement of the world demand greater expert knowledge and that widely diffused keenness which belongs only to a service that offers a true career to talent.

We have been compelled by the changing facts of the world to revise most of our economic and financial views, and make a new analysis. The same spirit is needed in every other department of life. No unchanged traditional machine can be adequate to the needs of to-day. We have the best police in the world. Our duty, by timely reform, is to see that it remains the best.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGEYESTERDAY'S MARKET FIRM

According to Messrs. Swan, Culbertson and Fritz, the New York market was firm yesterday. Business done: 5,010,000 shares. The Wall Street Journal reports:—Special issues in several groups, including rails, made wide gains while the main list remained firm at moderate gains, due to bullish business news. The price of grains was also higher owing to unfavourable wheat crop reports from Central and Southern Kansas. Traders who sold short on Saturday expecting a technical setback were obliged to cover and impetused the list upward with their bidding.

PEACE AND DISARMAMENT

It seems rather strange anti-war propaganda which is also anti-disarmament propaganda. Yet the issue involved, the achievement of Peace with Security, presents one of the biggest problems facing the nations of the world to-day. The key to the whole situation lies in the mental outlook and for this reason, a film now being shown in the Colony is of considerable interest to students of the international peace problem. Whether one agrees or disagrees with the final verdict, the presentation is stimulating, and thought-provoking. We should say at once that we disagreed in most particulars with the moral which the film endeavoured to draw. Many current realities are ignored, including the forces which tend to bring nations together to formulate common policies. And if disarmament is agreed and acted upon, the fear of being caught unprepared by a war-seeking nation can no longer exist. We have not yet reached that happy stage. The dangerous suggestion still dominates the minds of many people, that there are two sorts of nations, those who want war and those opposed to war. It is the alleged existence of nations which aim at war which is used to justify professedly peace-loving nations in preparations allegedly defensive but nevertheless provocative. Unless it is assumed that nations do not want war, it is useless to expect substantial improvement in their relations. Recently the Fascist Grand Council declared Italy's determination not to trouble the peace, but to collaborate in the reconstruction of Europe. But there has been a strengthening of the Little Entente owing partly to suspicions of Italy. French statements have been interpreted in an anti-Italian sense. The policy of European states has been influenced by fear of Italy's designs. Yet when Italy says it does not want war, it may well be believed. On its side, Italy charges Yugo-Slavia and France with preparing war against it. If Italians sell arms to Hungary, French citizens sell arms to the Little Entente. France appears in Italian eyes to be an "enemy." To the detached observer it would seem that France certainly has no intention of initiating a war; and of the sincerity of the pacific sentiments of the people there can be no doubt. Yet French policy appears to justify Italian policy just as Italian policy justifies French. On the Rhine and on the Vistula there is the same spectacle of nations which assert that they are menaced but are not menacing. The fact of the matter is that no country really wants war, but almost every country pursues a policy which may lead to war. It begins by fear of the neighbour, and it thus arouses fear in the neighbour. It considers that it is different from the rest; its own armaments are for its own protection, and not for aggression. But each country, believing these things of itself, refuses to believe them of other countries. The lamentable classification, accusatory of others, is responsible for a state of affairs recalling too vividly that of 1914. If each nation examined itself, and expected some reasonableness of its neighbour, instead of dwelling on the wickedness of the neighbour and its own righteousness, each would serve its own interests no less than the interests of peace.

The Mystery of a Hansom Cab

Of course a generation scornful to any speed less than 40 miles an hour probably doesn't care, but older folks will pause to register their thanks to Punch. For, in a recent issue, that genial dispenser of wit and philosophy tells how the once popular conveyance—the hansom cab—acquired its name. Just 100 years ago Joseph Aloysius Hansom, Esquire, an English architect of some renown, invented what has been prettily termed the "gondola of London." The United Kingdom is dotted with churches designed by Hansom, and this possibly accounts for the tower-like construction of his unique vehicle. Parenthetically it may here be remarked that the resemblance to ecclesiasticism did not extend to the cockney driver. A gay and expansive freedom of speech characterized that jaunty and picturesque Jehu. Particularly was this noticeable in his caustic comment when omnibuses blocked the way. "Why don't yer bring yer old woman abt to teach yer 'ow to drive?" he would banter the busman as, with a triumphant flourish of his whip, he squirmed through the obstructing traffic, and sped away at the breakneck gait of at least eleven miles an hour. Coach builders have affirmed that the hansom cab was the most accurately balanced horse-drawn equipage ever designed. Somehow or other, no other type of cab gave the occupant the same pleasing sense of exhilaration as did the hansom. There was the dash of adventure in the open view ahead and the fun of communicating with the driver by poking up the trapdoor with one's walking stick. Here and there, in London and elsewhere, a hansom may still be found, although rather in the nature of a relic reminiscent of that misty past when Fergus Hume's "Mystery of a Hansom Cab" rode in the van of best sellers, and the call of "ansom, sir," was just another picturesque touch in Piccadilly.

A New Imperialism

In a day when nations seeking to add new territory to their domains by conquest are censured by other nations, two such projects, one in execution and the other planned, should win nothing but praise. It is through such conquest, directed by engineering skill and not military generalship, that the Netherlands proceeds with its $400,000,000 task of wresting 550,000 acres of land from the grip of the sea. Now word comes that Denmark is planning to put thousands of unemployed to work adding to useful service territory now submerged between the islands of Moen and Bogo in South Zealand. No remonstrance or appeal to the World Court or the League of Nations has been occasioned by this mobilization of men and resources for purposes of conquest—nor have other nations, jealous of imperialist inclinations of a neighbour, argued for "balance of power," "parity," or "limitation" of dredger fleets. Old Man Ocean, while putting up a stubborn fight to retain the land will, it is hoped, eventually cede those small portions of a vast estate to the enterprising nations. If nations must enlarge the imperial scope of their endeavours or make room for a growing population they may yet find methods which will not deprive others of their rights or property. The building of dredgers instead of battleships, tractors instead of tanks and the arming of men with tools instead of guns offer rich possibilities.

A TRUE CAREER FOR MEN OF BRAINS

RE-MODELLING LONDON'S POLICE FORCE

By JOHN BUCHAN, M.P.

Lord Trenchard's Report on the Metropolitan Police is a document which gives cause for thought. Not that the law is losing ground in its fight with disorder.

At first sight it would appear that crime in London had increased during the year by 220 per cent., but that is only because a better statistical method has been adopted. The real increase is less than 5 per cent., and it lies chiefly in small larcenies. Crimes of violence against the person have been very few, and in the last two years there has been only one authenticated case of the motor bandit, that bogey of the timorous. The ordinary citizen may still sleep peacefully in his bed.

NEW SITUATION.

But the report raises a grave question of public policy. The Metropolitan Police has long endeared itself to the people of London. Sir Robert Peel in 1829 started the system of demanding from recruits only a good character and a satisfactory physique, and of filling all posts up to, and including, the rank of superintendent, by promotion from below. We have always got the physique and the character. There have been fewer scandals than in any other important police force in the world. In earlier days the system amply justified itself.

But to-day a new situation has arisen. The criminal has become far more subtle and ingenious, and he has at his disposal scientific appliances of which our fathers never dreamed. To cope with him the police must do more than keep up with him; they must get before him. That is a job which needs more than honesty and courage and good muscles. It demands a trained mind.

Now at present we have no provision for such training. The entrance examination for a constable is of the most rudimentary type, and all recruitment begins with the rank of constable. Though since 1919 the status and pay of the police have been greatly improved, the service is drawing only in a small degree upon the secondary schools. Not enough educated men enter the force.

A DEAD-END NOW.

Moreover, less than one in five of those who join qualify for promotion to higher ranks. There are already beyond the promotion zone, and "have no incentive to effort during the remaining years of service beyond their own sense of duty." For them the service is simply a dead-end, and yet it is a service which requires of every member a continued keenness and a steadily increasing competence. It must be a highly expert profession, but the present method of recruitment is a direct discouragement to the kind of man who is capable of becoming an expert.

The system is also bad for discipline in the higher sense. Abuses have crept in which would be impossible in a service which was largely staffed by, and which offered a real career to, ambitious and competent men. Lord Trenchard gives us as an instance the lengths to which the custom of allowing men off duty to be employed privately at matches, concerts, and sales, and to receive gratuities from private employers, has been carried.

Another is the appalling waste of time due to attendances at the Federation and Branch Boards established in 1919. These Boards have no fewer than 480 meetings in a year in official time, and roughly each involves the withdrawal from duty for a whole day of up to twenty and thirty police officers. This is clearly an abuse of the purpose of the 1919 Act. The consequence is a good deal of agitation and propaganda, and the production of a kind of "sea lawyer" who would not be tolerated in any other disciplined service. It is right that the force should have a full opportunity of discussing matters connected with their welfare and efficiency, but that is no reason why public money should be wasted in ill-informed agitation. Once again the cause is the system of recruitment.

AN UNFAIR SYSTEM.

The system, too, is as unfair to the police as to the public. There is no clear avenue from the bottom to the top. The chief posts at the headquarters at Scotland Yard are the Assistant-Commissionerships and Deputy Assistant-Commissionerships. The present holders have been drawn from the Army, the Navy, the Civil Service, and the legal profession. A number of Chief Constables are held by men promoted from the force itself, but there has been only one case of an Assistant-Commissioner so appointed.

Now it is perfectly clear that the Metropolitan Police cannot be run on the lines of the Army and the Navy. It is a halfway house between the regular defence forces and civil life, and it must work out its own appropriate system. But the first requirement is to attract men who have trained and active minds and can impress their personalities upon their subordinates. There must be an officer class, using the word not in any social sense. No army can be run wholly by non-commissioned officers. In a battalion there are 32 officers to deal with between 800 and 900 men. In the Metropolitan Police there is one man of the officer type to over 4,000 constables.

Lord Trenchard's conclusion is the same as that of the Lee Commission of 1929. That Commission held that "long experience and good service in the lower ranks of the force cannot be the only, or even the most important, qualification for the higher posts, which ought to be filled in all cases by men who, besides being themselves upright and fair-minded, are capable of impressing their own standards on their subordinates."

Lord Trenchard holds that a system under which all recruitment is to the rank of constable cannot provide a sufficiency of such men. He would therefore

The Very Idea!

BY GAD, IT'S CRICKET!

By Eddie Kelly, V.C., M.C.C.

Britain may rule the waves, but, according to the Aussies, she's not going to be allowed to waive the rules.

It seems that the Australian cricketering Board of Control hasn't finished with body line bowling yet.

Now rules, for the protection of the batsmen, have been formulated, and have been sent to the M.C.C. for consideration.

The A.B.C. doesn't mind Larwood having a leg theory. What they object to is that he puts the theory into practice.

So, henceforth, body line bowling must be abolished.

But the Aussies haven't gone far enough. Much more than the mere abolition of body line bowling is needed for the protection of a batsman.

Free, and without charge, we have gone to the trouble of formulating a set of rules that should meet the position. We give them to the M.C.C. for what they are worth.

1. If, in the opinion of the Umpire, the wicket keeper calls "Owzat" in so shrill a voice as to disconcert the batsman, the Umpire may order the wicket keeper to be gagged and his arms bound behind his back, and to take up his position directly between the batsman and Larwood.

2. If a fieldman deliberately catches the ball in the air after leaving the bat and before striking the ground, the Umpire may rule this "No Catch" and order the offending fieldman to stand in a corner, but the Umpire shall not make this decision before consulting the scoring board and the captain of the batting side.

3. A batsman shall be deemed to be "Out" if struck on the head by a meteorite, provided one of the fieldmen has not handled it.

4. If the batsman not taking strike shall trip the bowler with his bat or strike him on the shins during the bowler's run to the crease, the Umpire shall order the bowler to bowl from a distance of at least six feet from the offending batsman.

5. If a wicket shall be thrown down by a fieldman or knocked down by the wicket keeper or any fieldman with ball in hand while the batsmen are running and the batsman be still outside the crease, and, in the opinion of the Umpire, the batsman would have reached the crease if he had run faster, the Umpire shall rule "Not Out."

6. If these six rules do not fill up half a column of the "Very Idea" the composers shall be authorised to formulate enough additional rules to do so.

THE SLENDER SILHOUETTE.

It is time the police, themselves, no practitioners of it, began to look into this slimming business.

When a man wishes to build a house, or even a garden tool-shed, he has to obtain official approval of his plans, which must not be departed from. There are a few things he can do without first obtaining the permission of somebody. Life in Hongkong is chiefly a matter of permits and prohibitions.

Yet here is woman, allowed to chop and change her figure as caprice dictates, and no one dares to say her nay, not even the editor of The Critic.

Thanks to modern high-speed methods of slimming, a woman who is buxom to-day may be lissom to-morrow and positively shadowy the day after that.

Figures that are as round as the "o" of Giotto become parallel lines without the slightest notice.

The whole thing is most bewildering. It should be ordered to stop.

We always keep an eye on the writings of the fashion experts, because of all the stupidities that are written in his giddy old age, theirs are about the stupidest. If one were to judge by the stuff that is penned by the fashion writers, one would conclude that a large number of our women are either savages or half-wits.

And we refuse to believe they are as bad as that, bad as they are.

EVE'S EVIL INFLUENCE.

To turn to another matter, why do women persist in treating us men as if we were something between helpless babes and confirmed imbeciles?

We say nothing against the maternal instinct, because it has saved most of us at one time or another from destruction. But there are few men who have not a woman or two—mother, wife, or sister—clinging desperately to them and trying to protect them from the buffeting of a cruel world—those very buffeting that we enjoy, and which give us opportunity to assert the triumphant power of personality over the innate perversity of events.

"Oh, don't pay any attention to Marvyn! He just despises playing contract."

BATA CO. AGAIN
IN COURTCHINESE RETAILER PROSECUTEDAN AGREEMENT BROKEN

The recent Bata Shoe Company sensation was recalled before Mr. Wynne-Jones in the Central Police Court this morning when the Company, summoned Huen Sheung Yick, proprietor of the Bata Shoe Store, 184, Wellington Street, for possession and use of Bata goods.

Mr. Horace Lo appeared for the complainants, and Mr. F. C. E. Rendall, who tendered a plea of guilty, for the defence.

The Magistrate informed the Court that 572 wrappers, one roll string, six receipt books, 26 price labels, seven receipts, ten boxes of advertising cards, 96 circular envelopes and 253 circulars, all bearing the name of Bata, had been seized.

Mr. Lo stated that Messrs. Lo and Lo wrote to Messrs. Russ & Co., who had instructions for the defence, intimating that when the case came before the Magistrate the complainant firm would ask the court to take a serious view. Some months ago an old complainant said Mr. Lo, entered into agreement with the defendant. Actually he had no power to make the agreement, and when his superiors came to Hongkong, they were duly cancelled. The arrangement made with the defendant was that instead of standing on their own rights of cancelling the agreement altogether, they were paid $5,000 on the clear understanding they handed over everything bearing the name of Bata.

SERIOUS CASE.

The complainant company was very big, with offices registered in many countries of the world. The nearest registered Bata company was Singapore, although the firm was registered in Hongkong. The Bata Company had spent thousands of dollars on advertising their goods. Although due notice was given to the defendant that information had been received that he was still carrying on the business of Bata, he went on without the least regard for the complainant. Many letters passed between Mr. Lo's firm and Messrs. Russ & Co., who replied stating their client had no intention of doing anything wrong. Even before they applied for a search warrant, they warned the defendant.

The case was serious, Mr. Lo contended. On the one hand there were people who had rights to sell the goods, and had spent much money in advertising. The defendant was coolly and systematically sending circulars to inform people he sold Bata goods. He asked his Worship to deal with the defendant as severely as possible.

Mr. Rendall, addressing the Bench, said it may be that Bata Shoe Company is the largest in the world. The trouble started in November last year, when a Mr. Tomas, a representative of the Bata Company engaged the defendant as an agent, as he (Mr. Tomas) had no money. Shops were set up in the Gloucester Arcade, Kowloon, and in Wellington Street. Defendant had the responsibility of running these places, and Mr. Rendall believed he also paid the rent. Apparently Mr. Tomas had no authority to draw up an agency agreement. In February, Mr. Karl Weiss came and then the trouble began as Mr. Tomas and Mr. Weiss were putting one another in to gnol every other day. Mr. Rendall did not know if they appeared before his Worship, but serious charges had been made. Defendant was turned out of his shop and was subsequently sued by his folks for wrongful dismissal, his client having expended something in the region of $8,600.

"DIRTY PIECE OF PAPER."

Mr. Tomas's power of attorney Mr. Rendall described as a "dirty piece of paper" which had no stamp. His client made claim for $3,500 and was paid $5,000 out of which he had to pay rent and wages and another claim. Eventually he only got back into his pocket $1,000. His client had suffered enough and he really wanted to get rid of the business. He asked for a nominal fine.

Mr. Wynne-Jones pointed out that Bata was well-known, and it was his duty to protect the public. What hard luck the defendant may have suffered he was not concerned with. The proceedings were taken before him for the protection of the public more than the firm. He imposed a fine of $100 with $75 costs.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Suicides.

To The Editor, Hongkong Telegraph

Sir,—In your issue of last Friday, one of your contributors C. V. L. writes on "This Suicide Mania." Part of what he says is fairly sensible but I take the strongest possible exception to the following:

"How many, for instance, placed in similar circumstances have not envied the courage behind this drastic solution of life's ills—the quick way out of a problem they consider beyond remedy by rational means."

I do not know who C. V. L. happens to be. But let me tell him quite frankly that it takes no courage to take one's own life. On the contrary, I should certainly say it is a supreme act of cowardice. To allow C.V. L. to tell your readers that a would-be-suicide is full of pluck or guts is to say the least of it dangerous and highly misleading.

If a man shoots himself or does away with himself in any other way for such reasons as general fed-up-ness, failure to meet his liabilities, failure to get a job and the hardships that may entail or for fear of meeting a criminal charge or as some soldiers did on both sides of the front during the war, fear of being wounded or waiting in suspense for that or death, I should call it cowardice. To most sane people, suicide is a crime which can not be excused. According to English Law, should the would-be-suicide survive, he will be charged with having committed a criminal offence. To my own mind only a painful, lingering, incurable disease would constitute some sort of justification for taking one's own life. But for God's sake please abstain from making heroes out of suicide-candidates.

MECKNESS IS THE GRACE WHICH, FROM BENEATH GOD'S FOOTSTOOL, LIFTS UP A CANDID AND CONFIDING EYE, ACCEPTING GOD'S SMILE OF FATHERLY AFFECTION, AND ADORING THOSE PERFECTIONS WHICH IT CANNOT COMPREHEND.—James Hamilton.

A destitute Chinese woman attempted suicide by throwing herself from the Yau-mat ferry Man Chee yesterday, but was rescued and removed to Hospital.

After a family quarrel Ho Chin-fan, a married woman living at Nam-chang Street, Samshui, attempted to take her life by taking a big dose of opium. She was removed to the Kwong-Wah Hospital in a semi-conscious state.

A fine of $100 or two months' each was imposed by Mr. Wynne-Jones this morning on two Chinese women who kept houses of ill fame at 12, Peel Street and 160, Hollywood Road, respectively. Four girls were found in each. The usual order for closure of the floors was granted.

FUGITIVE'S PLEA
FAILSHABEAS CORPUS APPLICATIONBESA EXTRADITION CASE

The application for a writ of habeas corpus, made by Timoteo Evangelista, alias Joseph E. Besa, a fugitive from Manila, to a Full Court this morning, was refused, and the custody of the prisoner in Hongkong was declared lawful and just.

Extradition proceedings against Besa were commenced before Mr. Schofield at the Central Magistrate on May 6 and on May 16 he was committed to prison for 15 days.

Besa is wanted by the Philippine authorities for robberies of which he was convicted five years ago.

The Court comprised the Chief Justice Mr. J. R. Wood, and the Puisne Judge, Mr. R. E. Lindsell.

Appearing for the Crown when the case opened this morning was Mr. J. A. Fraser, Assistant Attorney General, who prior to dealing with the facts of the case cited the laws and conventions relating to habeas corpus proceedings and the treaty of 1842 between Great Britain and the United States of America, pointing out where they were applicable in the present case.

JURISDICTION ISSUE.

Mr. Fraser said the questions the Court had to decide were whether the magistrate in the Court below had jurisdiction and whether there was evidence upon which he could commit. In his affidavit, Besa had challenged the power to extradite on a number of grounds. The first was that there was unreasonable delay in the proceedings before the magistrate. There was no delay, submitted Mr. Fraser, for the magistrate in his notes, stated that the first intimation the Government of the Philippine Islands had of the fugitive's arrival in the Colony was on March 23 of this year. A letter was received from the Governor of the Islands on April 8 and action was taken at once. The question whether the delay was unreasonable was a matter entirely for the magistrate.

Besa's second point was that the extradition treaty between the United States and Great Britain did not apply to the Philippines and he followed that up with submissions that the actual territory to which the treaty applied was not mentioned in the treaty; that at that time the Philippine Islands were not in the possession nor under the jurisdiction of the United States; and that the treaty did not include future colonies or territories.

On this point, Mr. Fraser said the treaty had been treated by the Imperial Government as applying to all parts of His Majesty's dominions and had been applied to Hongkong. It had also been applied in the United States to the Philippine Islands by an act of the 58th Congress, 1905. The question of extradition, having been accepted by the two Governments, as applying to the Philippines, he submitted that in the absence of any other evidence the onus was not on him, Mr. Fraser, to disprove the matter.

ONUS ON CROWN.—The Chief Justice ruled that Mr. Fraser was not relieved of onus. The point to be decided was whether on all the documents and records before the Court the onus was discharged. The onus was on the Crown to prove that the custody in which applicant had been held was lawful. Mr. Fraser intimated that he would refer to the matter at a later stage.

In his application Besa also stated that he was not an American national. Mr. Fraser remarked that it did not matter whether prisoner was a national of any country. There was no reservation in the treaty.

Besa's next point was that he had jumped his bail of 24,000

ALLEGED REPUTED THIEFCAUGHT STEALING ON THE PRAYA

Described by the Police as a member of a gang of five waterfront pick-pockets, Sze To Wo, unemployed, was sent to gaol for three months by Mr. Wynne-Jones in the Central Police Court this morning.

Detective-Inspector Elston said on May 31, the defendant was seen by district watchmen and detectives on the Praya acting suspiciously near the Chung On Wharf. On the arrival of a ship, defendant mingled with the passengers and was seen to extract some papers from the pocket of a Chinese passenger, dressed in European clothing. Defendant stated to the Police that he thought the envelopes contained money.

pesos, and Mr. Fraser submitted that that was no ground at all.

It was merely a suggestion that he had paid the price instead of the penalty and therefore should not be subjected to any further persecution on that ground.

Mr. Justice Lindsell: That is the English view of the law in that connexion but I do not think the Americans will regard it in the same way.

VALUELESS.

The Chief Justice: The point is entirely valueless. The next submission of the applicant was that the trial was heard and sentence passed in his absence.

Mr. Fraser here stated that the depositions showed that the trial was agreed upon in a certain form between counsel for the two parties. As far as he understood Philippines Islands' law at the end of any trial if the accused is represented sentence would be passed by the judge sitting and if the accused was recalcitrant or any point of difficulty arose the judge save the accused time, anything up to a month, before passing sentence on him. The object of that respite was two-fold. One was that it gave the judge an opportunity of making a considered judgment and second that it gave the prisoner an opportunity to arrange his own affairs. In this case something like five days were granted. On the day set down for the sentence accused did not appear and a warrant was issued for his arrest. The warrant with which the court was concerned was one specially obtained for the proceedings.

FIVE YEARS.—Mr. Fraser said he was not quite sure of the purport of the point in Besa's affidavit that "five years have gone before the attempt to extradite me."

If by this he meant that the Manila authorities knew of his presence in Hongkong for five years before they took action, the point failed because the information that he was here was forwarded to Manila in March and was acted upon without delay. On the other hand, if the point was that since he had been absent from Manila for five years he was not now a subject for punishment, the point again failed. There were "periods of limitation" of 20 years in the case of serious crimes, 10 years in the case of less serious crimes, and five years in the case of petty offences but these periods did not commence to run while the fugitive was absent from the Philippine Islands and in any case the 10 or 20 years limitation which would apply to Besa, had not elapsed.

The sentence to which Besa would be liable was six or seven years but he had been convicted of another offence and the total liability might now be nine years.

ENQUIRY MADE.

Besa was in custody in Hongkong on another case at the beginning of the year and as he was a Philippine National, an enquiry was made on March 28 of the Philippine authorities. Following on their reply, Besa was arrested on another warrant on his release from the local proceedings.

The evidence put before the magistrate was that a robbery, according to Philippine law, had been committed in Manila, and from that evidence, said Mr. Fraser, it appeared to him to amount to larceny under English law. The Extradition Treaty had been extended to the Philippine Islands in 1905 and that Act was produced to the magistrate. The real question involved was one of jurisdiction, concluded Mr. Fraser, and he did not think it would be necessary to go into that very difficult and involved matter if their Lordships would accept his submission that where a territory was part of the territory of a State, and the law of that State was also there in force, these two factors determined the law as far as extradition was concerned. He had already proved that the Philippine Islands were part of the territory of America and were governed by the laws of America.

BESA'S STATEMENT.—Applicant was then invited to make a statement and he repeated the points outlined by Mr. Fraser and added that his contention of unreasonable delay was based upon the fact that he was arrested in January and the enquiries were not made until March.

Mr. Fraser said it was true that Besa was arrested in January. The Manila authorities were communicated with but they did not take action until they found there was a possibility of the proceedings in Hongkong falling through.

The Chief Justice said the justices were not disposed to take their time over their decision but to give it at once. In their view, the custody in which the applicant was held was true and lawful.

The charge was an extradition one under the Convention of 1889 and it was one of which he had already been convicted. It also appeared that the Treaties and Conventions provided for the accused provided for the delivery up to justice of persons accused or convicted of extradition crimes committed within the jurisdiction of the other State, and the formal steps taken in the present instance were quite regular.

APPLICATION DISMISSED.

There did not seem to have been any unreasonable delay and in any case that was a question in which the magistrate could have exercised his discretion. The time to appeal for a writ of habeas corpus was when the delay was occurring. The custody in which the applicant was held was lawful and just and the application for writ of habeas corpus was discharged.

LANCASHIRE'S CRICKET NIGHTMARE

MACAULEY TAKES 12 FOR 49

London, June 5. Yorkshire gained their seventh and most brilliant county championship victory of the season today when they beat Lancashire in the North of England "Derby" by an innings and 156 runs.

It was a remarkable achievement made possible by their medium-fast bowler, G. C. Macauley, who, in the course of the game took 12 wickets for 49 runs.

Lancashire were skittled out for 93 and 92, and this is the second time this season that Yorkshire have twice dismissed their opponents for less than 100 runs in each innings. Leicester were the first victims and it was Macauley who then did the trick, capturing 12 wickets for 47 runs.

MACAULEY'S FIGURES. Macauley had a splendid first innings analysis of 7 for 28.

and he followed this up with another fine piece of bowling which gave him figures of

5 for 21.

Yorkshire scored freely in their one and only visit to the crease putting 341 on the board ere the last wicket fell.

Mitchell led the way with a well compiled 123 and he received timely support from Barber, who contributed 62.

Lancashire were completely overawed by Macauley, and returned to the pavilion from their first visit to the wicket for 93 runs, whilst their second venture yielded only 92.

MAGNIFICENT RECORD.

Yorkshire, who seem destined to retain the championship, boast a fine record to date, having lost but one match and that a friendly against Cambridge, whilst all of their county championship programme has given them maximum points.

Their record to date is:

Henri Cochet, dethroned tennis champion of France, who lost his title to Jack Crawford of Australia yesterday.

THE FRENCH TITLES

CRAWFORD BEATS COCHET

MISS SCRIVEN TRIUMPHS

Paris, June 5.

If Wimbledon holds as many surprises and two such closing sensations as those which featured the French championships to-day, then international tennis of 1933 is going to contribute some unusually interesting historical data.

To-day both the men's and women's singles titles went out of France, when, in one of the greatest displays of his varied career, Jack Crawford, of Australia, defeated Henri Cochet, reigning champion of the world for four years, in straight sets, and Miss Scriven (England) beat Mme. Mathieu, the French ace, by two sets to one.

IRRESISTIBLE CRAWFORD. Crawford was irresistible. Setting a terrific pace he forced Cochet on the defensive from the opening games and gradually increased his grip until the French wizard could offer practically no opposition. Cochet only made a fight in the first set, and Jack Crawford, once he had conceded this at the fourteenth game, collapsed before the magnificently directed attack of the Australian and won but four other games.

Crawford, exhibiting his wide range of strokes, attacked on both hands with sweeping drives followed up by wonderful volleying. So predominant was he during the concluding sixteen games that Cochet never looked likely to stem the tide.

FRANCE LOSES TITLE FOR SECOND TIME.

This is the first time Crawford has won the French title, and there is no record of him having previously beating Cochet. With Harry Hopman he played a five sets doubles match against Cochet and Brugnon at Wimbledon in 1928 but lost. In the same year he appeared in the final of the Mixed Doubles championship at Wimbledon and in 1930 returned to win it in company with Miss Ryan.

Cochet was the holder of the championship, last year beating de Stefani in the final, and the title leaves France for the first time since 1891, the first year of the competition, when an overseas competitor named Briggs carried it off.

FIRST ENGLISHWOMAN TO WIN. To Miss Scriven falls the honour of being the first Englishwoman to win the ladies' singles championship and in so doing the title remains out for France for the fifth successive year.

Mme. Mathieu made her second appearance in the final in two years, being defeated in 1932 by Mrs. Helen Williams Moody. To-day the Frenchwoman had to bow the knee to a gallant opponent.

Miss Scriven, who in the opinion of the English critics, possesses the most virile backhand strokes among all lady players, quickly got into her stride and annexed the first set with the loss of two games.

After this Mme. Mathieu applied pressure and gaining confidence in her strokes increased the pace. Miss Scriven tried hard to hold her off and to snatch a straight sets victory, but the Frenchwoman broke through at the tenth game.

The struggle in the final set was titanic, but Mme. Mathieu expended a lot of her energy in saving the previous set and Miss Scriven sailed out a worthy winner at 6-4.

OVERSEAS SUCCESSES. The championships board has been clean swept by Anglo-Australian competitors, the winners being:

MEN'S SINGLES.

J. B. Crawford. (Australia).

WOMEN'S SINGLES.

Miss S. C. Scriven (England).

MEN'S DOUBLES.

F. J. Perry and G. P. Hughes (England).

Mme. Mathieu.

MIXED DOUBLES.

J. B. Crawford (Australia) and Miss Scriven (England)

To-day's results as cabled by Reuter were:

Crawford beat H. Cochet 8-6, 6-1, 6-3.

Miss Scriven beat Mme. Rene Mathieu 6-2, 4-6, 6-4.

FAR EASTERN GAMES

Manchukuo Problem Enters into Situation

Officials of the Philippine Amateur Athletic Federation are faced with a problem in connexion with the holding of the Far Eastern Games here next year.

The question involves the recognition of Manchukuo as an independent country in the Far East and is therefore eligible for competition in the Olympic games. The Japanese Athletic Federation has already suggested in a letter to the executive committee of the P.A.A.F. to invite Manchukuo to take part in the meet.

The admittance in the Far Eastern meet may bring a protest from the Chinese officials. The gravity of this problem has caused the P.A.A.F. to defer action.

Manchukuo made an attempt to take part in the last world's olympic games held at Los Angeles, but the international federation refused to recognize this country as an independent state, and the application was turned down. It is said, Japan, and French Indo-China are already sure of participating in the Far Eastern championships games to be held here next year.

The invitation sent to China by the local amateur athletic federation has not been answered.

SENSATIONAL BOWLS VICTORY

W. MACFARLANE'S RECOVERY AGAINST H. E. STRANGE

One of the most thrilling matches in the annals of the lawn bowls championship, in the course of which W. Macfarlane of the Kowloon Docks revealed an amazing fighting spirit, was seen at the Craignower last evening, when he defeated H.E. Strange of the Civil Service by 21 shots to 20.

Macfarlane was 19-6 and 20-12 to the bad at two stages of the match, but he recovered magnificently and bowling with great skill overhauled his opponent finally to snatch a sensational victory.

AN EARLY LEAD.

Strange was by far the superior bowler in the initial heads and jumped into a substantial lead. At the 13th he had scored 16 to Macfarlane's five and at the end of the next three heads had increased this to 19-6.

Macfarlane got in a nice two on the 17th, and a brilliant four on the 18th, only to see Strange snatch a single on the next head to put him in what appeared an unassailable position.

The Dock exponent, however, bowling with inspiration held off Strange until he had caught up at 20-all and then amidst tremendous excitement obtained a single.

K.C.C. SUCCESSES.

In another championship match V. C. Labrum (K.C.C.) eliminated H. G. Cooper (Kowloon Dock) by 21 shots to 15.

The pair remained on level terms until the 12th head but Labrum assumed the ascendancy from this point and ran out a fairly comfortable winner.

J. A. Howe (K.C.C.) easily beat A. M. Calman of the Docks in a rather tedious exhibition. He finished eight shots to the good and was always in the lead.

To-morrow's tie between D. Runjahn and W. Gladinning has been postponed until next week.

TODAY'S PROGRAMME. A big programme is arranged for to-day, when the following six matches will be played.

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

Saturday night, which used to be known as the night of the bath, and which now rates higher as "date night" for the general public, is the inspiration for "Hot Saturday" which commences on Thursday at the Queen's Theatre. It is the story of a girl who chose that evening to "walk home," only to find the next morning that she has suffered all the shame of not having done so.

Cary Grant, six-foot English newcomer to the screen; red-headed Nancy Carroll; well established favourite; and Randolph Scott play the leading roles.

Miss Carroll is cast as a girl who is made a subject of gossip by other women jealous of her popularity with men, and by the barber-shop sheika who have been disappointed.

Saturday night is play night for the entire crowd. And one Saturday when she had been forced to walk home to escape the embraces of a too-determined suitor, they see their opportunity to pillory her. Through town they spread the story that she has spent the night with Grant, a millionaire playboy, who has a summer home nearby.

The rumour costs her job, almost costs her her home.

"Hell Divers"

The first talking picture to feature the newest and most sensational type of aircraft, the fighting bombers, was "Hell Divers," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's vivid drama of the air which will be shown on Thursday at the Oriental Theatre with Wallace Berry and Clark Gable in co-starring roles.

The title of the picture is the same as the nickname of the Curtiss Wright divers, which hurl themselves straight down, five thousand feet or more, hurl bombs and then "straighten out" in the most breath-taking evolution ever invented.

They reach a diving speed of over 350 miles an hour. One of them can dive ten thousand feet—nearly two miles—in less than fifty seconds.

The picture, in which prominent supporting roles are played by Conrad Nagel, Dorothy Jordan, Marjorie Rambeau and Marie Prevost, was filmed aboard the aircraft carrier Saratoga, amid the thrills of the Panama manoeuvres.

Men Must Fight.

One of the most unusual pictures to come out of Hollywood is Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Men Must Fight," which is showing to-day and to-morrow at the Queen's Theatre. It offers a glimpse ahead to the year 1940 when, say the authors, the United States may be plunged into another war. But it is not intended as a war picture—rather it purports to prevent war by warning of a horror which the future will bring upon those who remain at home when

Do Nerves Cause Rheumatism?

In an indirect way rheumatism can often be traced to nerve weakness. Nervous tension interferes with the digestive processes and sets up stomach acidity. The acid poisons thus generated are set free into the blood stream and become lodged in various parts of the body, causing those aching pains which, although they feel as though they are actually in the bones, are really only in the tissues surrounding the bones. And sometimes the poisons lodge around the joints, causing terrible agony, as all sufferers know.

A treatment which has proved successful in many thousands of cases, in all parts of the world, is a course of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills go right to the root of the trouble. They possess the rare faculty of being able to create new supplies of pure rich red blood. This new infusion of the vital fluid feeds the nerves and strengthens digestion, thus putting an end to the acidity which is the cause of the rheumatic poisons. The weak and poison-laden blood is soon eliminated and a healthy bloodstream, free from the acid crystals, is obtained.

In this way, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills accomplish what all the anti-acid compounds and external applications can never achieve. By building up blood and nerves Dr. Williams' Pink Pills remove the cause of rheumatism, invigorate the system and obtain results that are permanent. All chemists can supply you.

A brilliant cast enhances the telling of this dramatic tale. First honours go to Diana Wynyard, Lewis Stone, Phillips Holmes and Ruth Selwyn. Miss Wynyard offers a forceful and sympathetic portrayal as the woman whose lover was killed in the World War and who precipitates a veritable war of her own to prevent her son from being sacrificed to future international conflict.

Lewis Stone is seen in another of his flawless character portrayals. As the son who refuses to fight, Phillips Holmes has what is probably the most difficult role of his screen career.

"Week Ends Only"

A playwright at the age of eight, a schoolgirl in Franco at fifteen, a runaway in an elopement at seventeen, a mother the following year, an actress with her first and only stage role, and an even greater success in her first picture a scant three years ago and in the fifteen she has made since, Joan Bennett has crammed plenty of experience into her youthful career.

Along with her dramatic heritage from a line of distinguished players, her wistful beauty and her flashing wit, this background has put depth and power into her portrayals. Few film actresses have progressed so swiftly and surely into popular favour as has Richard Bennett's youngest daughter. Her first screen roles were designedly innocuous, since no one knew the extent of her dramatic talent. The parts were written chiefly to take advantage of her fragile loveliness, which was certain to score in any case.

Soon, however, the slender Joan proved conclusively that she could act, and act brilliantly. Also she displayed unmistakable abilities as a comedienne. Both the public and the producers discovered these facts, and bigger and better roles resulted. Her original timidity pictures, partially assumed by her initial success, was eliminated entirely and in its place came the sureness and conviction that marked her subsequent performances.

Her latest appearance, and perhaps the most polished of all her appearances, is in "Week Ends Only" showing at the King's Theatre to-day. Here she portrays a girl raised in the lap of luxury who suddenly finds herself fatherless and penniless. Her frantic search for a job and kind of a job results in her creation of a new feminine profession as a paid weekend hostess for society gatherings, and this in turn brings about a hectic three-sided romance with Ben Lyon and Joan Halliday as the rival suitors.

MURDER CHARGE

AMERICAN HELD IN SHANGHAI CASE.SEQUEL TO DEATH
OF L. M. BELL

Shanghai, June 5.

The American authorities to-day formally charged Glen Hargrave, former United States Marine, with the murder of Leslie Malcolm Bell, a Britisher.

The charge declares that Hargrave "feloniously and wilfully struck Bell on the jaw, causing him to fall on the pavement, and thereby causing death."—Reuter.

Glen Hargrave, a motor car salesman, surrendered voluntarily to the United States District Attorney following Bell's death last Thursday morning.

Bell was found unconscious on the Bund during the afternoon of Wednesday and he died the following morning in hospital.

A wound was found on his chin when he was picked up, but the post mortem examination apparently disclosed other injuries, suffered when he fell.

The quarrel, as a result of which Bell allegedly lost his life, took place out side the Shanghai Club.

CLOSER COLLABORATION

London, June 5.

Paying a tribute to Mr. T. V. Soong, who lands in England to-day, as a visitor of exceptional distinction, The Times says that his achievements during the past two years does not justify excessive optimism as to the prospects of the Nanking Government, which has many enemies, but it does at least suggest a policy."Mr. Soong and Marshal Chiang Kai-shek," say The Times "are the most likely to restore prosperity to China. Mr. Soong's policy is a realist's policy. Its advocacy requires exceptional courage so soon after a successful revolution, and the fact that its champion will meet Mr. Ramsay MacDonald and other members of the British Cabinet inspires the hope that they will take advantage of his presence to discuss Anglo-Chinese relations in a spirit of friendly collaboration."—Reuter.For Your

BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

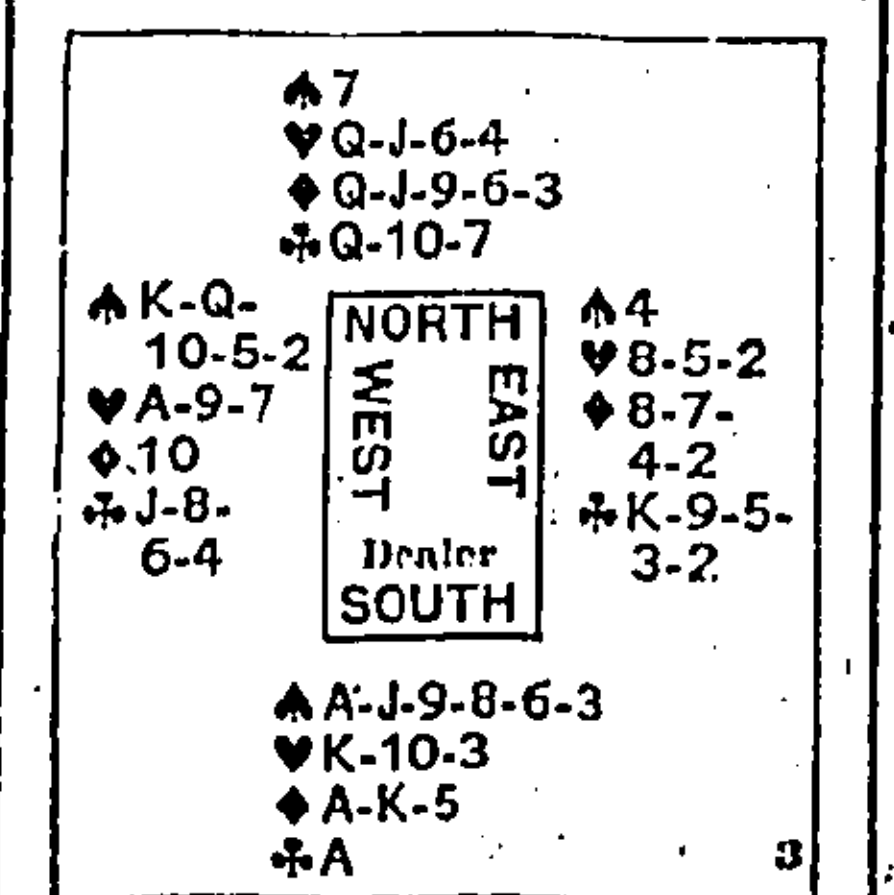

The most interesting form of championship bridge is the team-of-four game. Here one pair of a team sits North and South at one table while their partners sit East and West at the other table. The opposing team takes the opposite seats.

The board is played at one table and then passed over to the other table, where your opponents hold your cards and your teammates hold the cards held by the opponents at your table. It is in these types of matches that real championship calibre is brought out.

As this writer has often stated, the one over one system of contract bidding has won a great majority of major championships within the last three or four years.

The first important tournament of 1933 was the Eastern tournament held in New York City and here again the one over one system of play was victorious, carrying off both the team-of-four championship and the open contract pair championship.

The team-of-four championship was especially interesting this year as it brought together in the final round two teams each of which had a player who had formerly been a member of the famous Four Horsemen team.

The victorious team was the Bidrite Club team of New York, its personnel being David Burnstine, Richard Frey, Howard Schenken and Charles Lochridge. At the end of the contest I asked each player to give me one of the interesting hands of the match, so in this and the next three articles I will present those hands.

In the first hand we find Mr. Burnstine, rated as one of the ten best players in the country, winning the match not by a spectacular bid or play, but by a well-timed pass.

Mr. Burnstine in the South opened with one spade. His partner made a sign-off bid of one no trump. Mr. Burnstine then bid three spades—an absolute forcing bid.

Mr. Frey in the North responded with three no trump. Many players in Mr. Burnstine's position would make the mistake of bidding four spades.

But he has opened first hand with a spade bid. He has made a forcing bid of spades in the face of a one no trump sign-off bid. He has certainly told his partner everything about his spade holding and now if his partner will not elect to allow the hand to be played at spades, Mr. Burnstine correctly decided to pass.

West doubled, and Mr. Frey redoubled. This redouble demands partner not to go back to spades.

The Play

East elected to open a small spade which was won in dummy with the ace. Hearts were then led until West's ace was forced. A club was returned by West and Mr. Frey then spread the hand for four no trump.

At the other table, the opposing team, holding Mr. Burnstine's cards, arrived at a four spade contract which Mr. Schenken doubled and defeated one trick.

PHILIPPINES INDEPENDENCE BILL

Little Hope of Compromise Plan at Present

The failure of all compromise efforts regarding the Hawes-Cutting Bill among Filipino political leaders now in Hongkong is revealed in an interview with the Hon. Sergio Osmena, President Pro Tempore of the Philippine Senate and Vice-Chairman of the Nacionalista (Government) Party.

On the arrival of the Conte Rosso on Saturday, the Hon. Manuel L. Quezon, President of the Senate and Chairman of the Nacionalista, reiterated his refusal to advocate the acceptance of the Bill in its present, or any other form, and added that before he left Manila the sentiment of the people was in accordance with this view. He had no reason to believe that this sentiment had changed.

The Hon. Sergio Osmena says: "I don't know what Mr. Quezon is going to say or what he has said but we, the members of the Mission who have been engaged for a year in the States on this Bill, will unanimously recommend its acceptance. The Bill definitely settles the question of independence and we hope the people will accept it but I cannot say whether they will or not because I don't know what the feeling is."

ATTACK ON EVEREST

FURTHER EFFORT THIS WEEK

IMPROVEMENT IN WEATHER

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Message Ordinance, 1911. Received June 6, 9.15 a.m.)

Bombay, June 6. The Rutledge Expedition which is attempting to scale Mount Everest is determined to make a further effort to reach the summit before the monsoon sets in completely.

The early advance of the monsoon has already hindered the preparations of the climbers and several bids for the peak have had to be abandoned.

The weather has now shown some improvement, however, and it is hoped to renew the attempt this week.

In the event of a further failure, the expedition will probably be compelled to postpone the attack on Everest until the monsoon season is over.

In one recent attempt on the summit, two of the members of the Expedition, including Mr. F. S. Smythe, the conqueror of Kanchenjunga, were missing for some time, but turned up safely some hours later, again reporting failure. They were apparently compelled to take shelter from a particularly strong gale.—Reuter.

FURTHER DETAILS OF LAIKIPIA AFFAIR

Nairobi, May 30.

Further details of the attack on white settlers in East Africa have now come to hand.

It appears that armed parties of wild Suk tribesmen from portions of the northern frontier province of Kenya, invaded the white settled area of Laikipia in consequence of grazing having failed in their own district following the recent drought.

There seems to have been some misunderstanding. The party of tribesmen entered the farm occupied by a settler named Wallace, driving herds of cattle and sheep in search of grazing.

The farmer took possession of the stock, whereupon the tribesmen attacked Wallace and his manager with spears and the latter had to fire in self-defence.

It is believed that several tribesmen were injured.

The native seized Wallace, who was thrown into a gully.

A Chinese woman, Lau Woon, was fined $300 or in default two months hard labour by Mr. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy this morning, for possession of four taels of prepared opium.

THREE CHINESE INJURED IN CITY STREET

Great excitement prevailed in a side street off Connaught Road Central yesterday afternoon, when part of a galvanised iron chimney became dislodged and fell from the roof of the Tai Chung Wah Hotel, landing on three Chinese, who were gathered on the kerb. The iron fell a height of four storeys, and three Chinese were injured, two seriously. They were taken to the Government Civil Hospital for treatment.

The injured men were Chiu Kam, 16, Chiu Lau, 25, both described as unlicensed hawkers, and Wong Chuk, 40, of Third Street. They were struck on the back of the head by the falling iron pipe, which measured about five feet in length.
